EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

DONOVAN, the champion roller skater, is dead.

THE man who thinks of Grant's faults now has a soul that would be dear at a farthing.

RUSSIA knocked England down in the first round, but may not be so successful next time.

ENGLAND says retreat and Russia says "We wont." Now it behooves England to strike the first blow.

A TEAR was in the Watchman editor's eye when he penned the four words "Carter Harrison is beaten" which appeared in the late issue.

DO NOT be discouraged because of the weather. We implicitly believe that from July 4 to August 4 there will be be no snow in this latitude.

JUDGE JOHN K. PORTER, the distinguished lawyer who prosecuted Guiteau, defended Beecher in the Tilton case and Horace Greeley in the Dewitt C. Littlejohn libel suit, was stricken with apoplexy a few days ago.

EVENTS in Utah indicate that the time is rapidly approaching when a decisive blow can be aimed at polygamy. This institution is one of the few things which offer the present Administration an opportunity for enduring distinction in the cause of honest reform.

MRS. HUNT, the lady whom the Democrat accused of self-interested motives in her temperance work in this State, has never realized a cent from her work except perhaps for actual expenses, and has paid out thousands of dollars from her own pocket to further the great cause.

IT IS announced that Vice President Hendricks and his estimable but ambitious lady will visit Europe during the summer and fall. No one can blame the man who holds a position like that of Vice President for desiring to take it out in foreign countries. He will have some honors paid to him there.

WHAT a burning disgrace to our institutions that in a great city like Chicago honest citizens are forced to organize for the protection of their rights against a band of ballot box thieves and stuffers encouraged and shielded by the Mayor whom their frauds have repeatedly placed in office!

POSTMASTER JNO. T. JOHNSTON purchased a new broom Saturday morning for use in the postoffice. That's not a subject of importance, perhaps you say; but isn't it suggestive of the new broom that Cleveland is going to supply soon? If he gives us a broom that will sweep as clean as the old one did, we'll all be satisfied.

ANOTHER name is added to the list of prominent American politicians who are suffering from mortal ailments in the case of ex-Secretary Frelinghuysen, the report of whose serious illness will be everywhere received with deep concern. It is to be hoped that the alarming symptoms will prove to have been overstated, though there appears but little doubt that his condition is such as to justify the greatest apprehension.

THE subject of the recognition which colored application for office shall receive at the hands of the present administration is being agitated. Register Bruce of the Treasury, is a colored man, and an ex-Senator from Mississippi. It is not now believed that he will be succeeded by a colored man, although the President promised that the number of colored men in Government employ should not be reduced under his Administration.

A Plea for Consistency.

We feel like "going for" the Centre Democrat on the subject of the adoption by the legislature of the bill to permit temperance hygiene to be taught in the public schools. It seem to us that the Democrat acts somewhat perfidiously on the temperance question, standing on the fence and attempting to smile at both the contending parties at the same time.

If we remember correctly, the issue of last week contained on the local page an exhortation addressed to the ladies of the W. C. T. U. to subscribe for that paper because—forsooth!—it publishes sundry temperance articles sent to it by the ladies. That is all right. We would be pleased to see these and all other ladies subscribe for not only that paper, but also for all the other papers published in the borough. But when we turn to the editorial page what do we see? Prominent among the articles is one entitled "Temperance Hygiene," which attempts to ridicule the legislature for passing said bill; calls it a measure engineered and carried through by that distinguished lady, Mrs. Hunt; applies to the ladies the odious appellation of lobbyists; says that the results of the bill will financially benefit only Mrs. Hunt, and that she carries the scalp of this legislature as well as those of several other states in her belt. Now, this seems exceedingly inconsistent. The article reads as if it might have been inspired by a certain member of the legislature from this county who for some reason opposed said bill, and it is because we Wood-ward off from the editors of the Democrat the charge of attempting to carry water on both shoulders and whiskey on the other shoulder that we call attention to this wide devergence of sentiment in a single issue of the paper.

That article containing, as it does, the above and many other charges injurious to the ladies, seems to us a strange return to them for their days, months and years of uninterrupted labor and earnest prayers. For years they have labored to have such a bill passed, and it was originated at a small gathering of the most noble and devoted ladies in this state held in a room in the court house, just over the spot where the then recorder of Centre County, and now editor of the Centre Democrat at that time worked on the clean pages of his recording docket. In brief, it was during the State Convention of the W. C. T. U. in this place that the plans to pass this bill were first formulated. Behold it going triumphantly onward, opposed only by a few cranks, passing almost unanimously both branches of the legislature—and then to receive a blow at the place of its birth and in the paper that appeals for temperance support. Oh consistency, thou art a jewel—but where shall we find thee?

But what of these charges? It may be true that Mrs. Hunt is the author of the best text book on the subject of "Temperance Hygiene," but that will not prevent other and more learned persons writing and publishing better books and the adoption of any suitable text book is permissable. That she, for the benefit of the cause, was willing to devote her great learning to the authorship of such a work is only another tribute to her greatness and true worth. All honor to Mrs. Hunt and other ladies who worked for this bill. Why, even those who sell whiskey favor the bill; for they have hearts, and although they are willing to make money in the business, they want their own sons and daughters to grow up sober and temperate. The unanimous vote in its favor in the Court House on the occasion of Mrs. Hunt's lecture here proved this assertion.

If the editors of the Centre Democrat had mingled with the ladies who compose the W. C. T. U. of Pennsylvania never would they be willing to apply to them the epithet—"lobbyists." The proudest, most sensitive, most cultured ladies of our land, of the most refined and exalted Christian characters, are brought by their sorrows to one, common level in working for this cause. They mingle their tears, sympathies and prayers and go forth panoplied in more than human armor to fight the powers of darkness. They behold in the East the dawn of a glorious day. Too enthusiastic are they, perhaps, even to notice the Democrat's article.

The only argument yet raised against the bill that in our opinion rises to the dignity of an argument is that the children already have enough studies and one more will but add to their duties, and that the expense in purchasing text books is considerable. So far as the last is concerned, all who spend money in the pursuit of this branch of knowledge will be richly repaid in happy, temperate lives, while the study of "Temperance Hygiene" can, by the teacher, be pursued, as much as possible by object lessons, its facts impressed in a conversational way, and it will thus become a recreation instead of a burdensome study. The passage of the bill is a step toward true progress.

The quotations which we make below from the Amendment Herald show that the charges that Mrs. Hunt had motives of personal gain in influencing the passage of the bill are inspired by the corrupt whiskey ring. Read the following letter of which we publish as much as space will permit. It shows that Mrs. Hunt is acting the part of a true humanitarian, and that she is a noble, self-sacrificing lady:

PHILADELPHIA, March 9, 1885.

Hon. A. D. Glenn, Chairman of the Committee on Education, House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pa.:

DEAR SIR:—Understanding that some of the opponents of your bill for "the study of physiology and hygiene in the public schools" have resorted to the somewhat stale argument that it has its origin in interested motives on the part of its supporters, we venture to call your attention to the following statement:

A similar bill it now pending before the Legislature of Massachusetts. A few weeks since a charge almost identical with the one above alluded to was made in that body. Rev. Albert H. Plumb, pastor of the Walnut Avenue Congregational Church, of Boston, appeared before a legislative committee of the Massachusetts General Court, and said in answer:

"Some of the organs of the liquor interest, evidently afraid to have our children taught the truth on this subject, are seeking to prejudice the the measure by charging it to a book publishing ring.

* * * * * * *

"Their chief agent in this endeavor is my honored friend and neighbor, Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, long a worthy member of a Congregational church near my own. Mrs. Hunt and her associates in this undertaking have no pecuniary interest whatever in the measures they advocate. She has indeed been active in securing suitable text-books for temperance instruction. This was her duty, lest the instruction she asked for be denied from lack of the needed books. But she has utterly refused to receive a single cent, directly or indirectly, from their sale."

* * * * * * *

Before a legislative committee of the Massachusetts General Court Mr. Joseph Cook said:

"All the charges that the whiskey rings bring against Mrs. Hunt are false, root and branch, and in every fibre. She has not the slightest financial interest in the school books to which she has given her sanction. I know on the highest authority that the publishers of that book offered her compensation for it and that she refused it. She has spent thousands of dollars to advance the good and great cause she advocates, and has done this with no prospect of pecuniary compensation. Her work is as unselfish as that of Washington in the Revolution. Her remarkable career has been full of self-sacrifice."

War! War! War!

A mighty struggle between England and Russia now seems a foregone conclusion. All the journals of prominence on both sides of the Atlantic seem to agree on this fact. For, says the Philadelphia North American, the news of the fighting at Murghaub is confirmed, and the Russian authorities have made no offer to disavow General Komaroff's advance. On the contrary, the St. Petersburg Official Messenger undertakes to justify it upon the ground that the Afghans assumed the aggressive, and as the Russian press is allowed to publish nothing which is not agreeable to the government, this no doubt represents the view of the situation which the Czar's advisers will take in their communications with Gladstone's Ministry. In that case war is inevitable. Perhaps it could not now be averted even if apologies were offered and amends made. Lord Dufferin has just been at great pains to impress the Ameer with a due sense of British power and to persuade him that England, not Russia, is his best friend and most desirable ally. The Afghans will not expect those protestations to be made good. They will look to England to make common cause with them against the Russian enemy, and they cannot be allowed to look in vain. For England under such circumstances to falter or to draw back would be a suicidal course. The Afghans would regard it as a sure sign of weakness, and they would be impelled, alike by indignation at what they would regard as a betrayal, as by the natural disposition of the Oriental to cringe to the stronger power, to throw themselves into the arms of Russia and invite the protectorate which Russian statesmen are only too anxious to establish. Thus the episode at Murghaub changes the whole complexion of affairs. It is no longer Great Britain which must be satisfied; it is Afghanistan, and with that country the fine words which Mr. Gladstone shows such a readiness to accept will hardly pass current. The Ameer will insist upon something more substantial, and he must be satisfied. The alliance so lately cemented through Lord Dufferin's wise diplomacy must at all hazards be maintained, unless the English are willing to see themselves discredited and Russian influence predominant—unless they are willing to see Afghanistan turned into a Russian province to be used hereafter as base of operations in a war waged for the conquest of Hindostan. These are contingencies which the English people are probably not prepared to accept, and so as things look now nothing but a miracle can prevent that declaration of war for which the civilized world is expectantly waiting.

WHY is it that a Democrat's step toward economy always takes shape in his dismissal of employes? This was so when the Democrats had a majority in the legislature of this State, it is so in the White House at Washington since Cleveland has occupied it and in many other instances that have come to our knowledge. A Democrat never seems to think of reducing his own salary. For this reason these moves which they make to what they call economy are little less than contemptible. We believe that if the Democrats would increase the number of employes and save in other ways they would more truly win and deserve the confidence of the people.

IT is rather more than probable that Carter Harrison will be declared re-elected to the office of Mayor of Chicago, since, despite allegations of fraud and the undeniable facts of violence and intimidation at the polls, the Democratic body, which alone has power to scrutinize the vote, has too much hide-bound partisanship to permit a doubt to be cast on the success of a Democratic candidate. It cannot be doubted, however, that the Chicago election was one of the most scandalous exhibitions ever made, even in that city of loose morality.

THE populace in the large cities seem to be about evenly divided in regard to the Bullitt bill.

The Conscience of the Country.

A conscience contribution of five dollars has just been received at the Navy Department, the first ever know to have been sent there. It was from Boston. The Secretary of the Treasury also received one of twenty-two dollars from New York, and a short time ago one of $915 post-marked Boston. Every now and then some anonymous person forwards to the Treasury of the United States a contribution to the conscience fund. Many may suppose from such announcements that there is somewhere in the Treasury a separate fund made up of these contributions from the conscience stricken, and that it must be of considerable size. But such contributions have always been covered into the Treasury under the head of miscellaneous receipts. The term "conscience fund" was the invention of Treasurer Spinner. Twenty years ago a letter was one day received at the Treasury Department from a man who, inclosing a check of $1,500, said it represented a little misappropriation of Government funds of which he had been guilty. Treasurer Spinner said "We will call that a contribution to the conscience fund. We will have it announced in the papers, and perhaps we'll get some more." The announcement was duly made and the Treasury promptly got more. From that time on for ten years the contributions were very numerous. During the past ten years they have been growing more infrequent. It is not known whether this is in consequence of the conscience of the country growing more callous or more tender. The largest contribution ever sent was 14,000, the smallest nine cents. It is estimated by Treasury officials that the total amount of these contributions would be about $350,000.

MISS MARY PACKER, the only surviving child of the late Judge Asa Packer, projector of the Lehigh Valley railroad, who was privately married in Mauch Chunk Wednesday last, to Mr. Charles H. Cummings, of New York, has probably the largest income of any lady in the United States. It is about one thousand dollars per day, to say nothing of the income from the accumulations of interest on the amount received since the death of her father and two brothers, Robert and Harry Packer. Mr. Cummings, the lucky bridgroom, is, like Miss Packer's father, a self-made man. Starting as a conductor on the Lehigh Valley railroad, he has worked his way up until he has become the head of the New York end of the enormous business of the Lehigh Valley. He was the intimate friend of the late president, Harry E. Packer, and his relations with E. P. Wilbur, the present president of the Lehigh Valley company, have been intimate and confidential. Mr. Wilbur and Mr. Cummings own cottages on adjoining islands on the St. Lawrence,—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin.

WASHINGTON is now displaying its usual spring loveliness. The work of clearing up the parks, trimming the shrubs, and setting out plants has at last begun, but the season is several weeks behind that of last year. Under Republican Administrations the trees have been in the habit of putting on their garments of green and the grass in the parks and lawns has demanded the care of the mower early in April. But then it is the boast and pride of the Democratic administration that it goes slow.

WHATEVER the Irish may think of the English, they seem to have a very warm and affectionate feeling for the Prince and Princess of Wales.

A GROCER'S WOOING.

"My dear Miss Sally Ratus," sighed
The grocer on his knee,
"I canned corn-ceive no butter bride
Than you would beef for me."

"You are a silly man," replied
The maid, "as one mace see—"
"If vermicilli man," he cried
"I mustard-mire thee.

"For, Miss the love you're kindling wood
Soon make me smart, oil through
It's cinnamon to bean no good—
O! do nutmeg me go."

Then with a coffee rose and said,
"Before rice starch you might Give me this soap"—she sugar head
And, blushing, dimmed the light.

"Will! Lime afraid of kerosene,
Of caress seen," said she,
"Who candles-cover what thy e mean
Is smart tea-nough for me."

"The raisin sardine deed to guess,"
Said he, "but I will try—
You fear to have my sweet caress—
Seen by out-cider's eye."

"You're right; you'll make some honey comb
And I'll lard-mit I'm caught—
You candle light me with a home—
Now squeeze meal as you ought."

NEW MAPLE SUGAR.

Sweet harbinger of early spring,
I sing thy praise;
What recollectio s thou dost bring
Of early days.

In grocers' windows thou dost lie,
The source of joy;
And for thy saccharine juices sigh
The girl and boy.

Fain on thee would they make a raid,
And care no rap,
Because, oh sweet, thou art not made
Of maple sap.

What thou art made of no one asks,
Friend of the masses—
Of scrapings of the sugar casks
Of stale molasses

It is enough that thou art sweet,
Not hard to break;
And when a boy takes thee to eat,
He takes the cake.

The maple sap begins to flow
When thou art here,
"New maple sugar," and we know
That spring is near.

ARTHUR.

It was a day of anguish, rimmed with hate!
With trouble brooding over land and sea,
Rock all aloft and breakers on the lee,
The winds adverse, the waves importunate,
When thou, in our misfortune fortunate,
Accepting elevation reverently,
A mourner yet a master, fearlessly
Didst take command of the good Ship of State.

Thou hast commanded well: thy term is done;
To-day thou art our fellow-citizen;
And few will say thou hast not honor won,
Or call thee "great by accident" again;
And when one prays, God bless thee, there is none
In this wide land but will respond, Amen.

Our Story Teller.

The Family Black Sheep

"And you, Freda," says my paternal ancestor, sternly gazing down from his superior height upon my pretty five feet two, "are to behave sensibly, if possible, and consider yourself engaged to Mr. Comyn."

I feel myself sink—figuratively speaking—away to the lowest depth of despair, as papa goes on reflectively.

"Really a fine offer to you! You have always been the black sheep of the family, Freda, and certainly do not deserve such good fortune as to marry a man worth a cool million, who is quite devoted to you. So take the goods the gods provide, and make no demur."

"A sacrifice to appease the wrath of the gods," I quote demurely. But my heart is mutinous and rebellious to the last degree. How dare my father, or any one else, dispose of me in this cold-blooded, mercenary fashion? I hate Mr. Comyn! I am positive that it is hatred which is devouring my heart at the present moment, although, never having met the gentleman in question, how can I tell what my sentiment in regard to him may be?

Yes, I have never met Mr. Comyn; yet he is mad enough to ask me to marry him! Such a curious affair in every way.

Sister Rita and I had attended an archery party at Mrs. Somer's lovely country home, and Mr. Comyn, chancing to be present, had fallen deeply in love with me! At least, such is his astonishing announcement in his letter to my father, which has just been received. Yet I am positive he was not presented to me at all, and, indeed, I was so engrossed with the game and so fully occupied with (well yes, the truth must be told) flirting with Harry Blake, that I have simply no recollection of meeting the aspirant for the honor of my hand at all. But the party was a large one, and so perhaps, it is not strange that I have forgotten him.

I take the letter from papa's hand (he is strangely deferential to me, "the black sheep of the family," since this proposal from Mr. Comyn) and I glance eagerly over the page of note paper covered with a sprawling chirography. I caught a glimpse of my name, and my heart sinks; yes he means me.

The epistle goes on to observe that having had the pleasure of meeting Miss Freda Lowell at the archery party given by Mrs. Somers, he had fallen a sudden victim to the little blind god, and begs the honor of her hand in marriage, providing he shall be able in time to win her heart.

Ah, there is a loophole! He will never win her heart—oh, no! Something of my thought must have expressed itself in my face for papa observes hastily:

"Now, remember, Freda, no tricks! It is my desire—my command—that you accept Mr. Comyn!"

"Oh, papa, don't make me say 'yes' now! Even the condemned criminal going to the scaffold, is allowed time for preparation—fasting and prayer."

Papa frowned severely.

"Freda!" His voice is very stern, and I tremble in my boots. "You ungrateful child! Do you realize that it is all I can do to keep up the family?"

"Oh, papa!" I cry piteously, (Fred says when I turn on the "water works" there is no resisting me), "do let me support myself; I can teach—I know I can! I have never considered marriage. I am young. Rita is the oldest; why can't he content himself with Rita?"

"Yes," why cant he? She is decidedly the prettiest—though, truth to tell, we look wonderfully alike. We are respectively 17 and 19, and look even younger. Papa is frowning prodigiously. I see there is no use in remonstrance—his mind is ma e up. A millionaire in the family! Papa puts an end to the controversy at last by quickly leaving the room. I sink down upon the broad window seat, and prepare for a good cry, when some one pulls my hair emphatically. I stifle a yell and spring to my feet. Only Fred! An inspiration seizes me!

"Oh, Fred," I wail piteously, "can't you help me! You have influence with papa—do beg him to give up the horrible marriage!"

He is only 15 and the pet of the family.

"Freda, don't be a goose," he ejaculates at last. "Wish I had the chance to marry a girl as rich as Mr. Comyn. I'd perpetrate matrimony if she was ugly as original sin and my pet aversion."

"Et tu Brute!" I pout indignantly. Fred laughs.

"Precisely. And Freda, what do you think? Ritta is as mad—oh, as a March hare, because Mr. Comyn did not propose to her. Funny, isn't it, that he didn't fall in love with her?"

"I wish he had!" I cry; "with my whole heart I wish he had! But there is no such good luck for me, Fred."

And I marched away in high dudgeon, and tying on my big sun hat, fly down to the beach—my usual place of refuge. Here my little boat is moored; I spring in push off upon the broad bosom of Lake Ponchartrain. Before I have gone far I am seized with another inspiration. There isn't a living soul in sight. I find a retired nook, and landing my boat, draw it upon the white sandy beach for safety. Then I seat myself upon the sand and deliberately pull off my shoes and stockings; I am going to wade, for the tide is out, and the water is cool and delightful. I have not gone far, however, holding the skirts of my gray linen dress up rather high, and thoroughly enjoying the situation, when I catch the sound of a faint groan. I drop my skirts involuntarily, and putting my hands to my mouth, as I have often seen Fred do upon similar occasions, I shout lustily:

"Hallos!"

The answer comes at once, and so close to my side that I cry aloud in alarm. I turn quickly, and then I understand, Just around a little bend, which forms a sort of a cove, I catch a glimpse of a man lying at full length upon the sand. Even from that distance I could distinguish the pallor of his face, and understand intuitively that some accident has overtaken him. I glance down at my bare feet. No time for shoes and stockings now—I dart through the water and quickly reach his side. The very handsomest man I ever met. He raised his dark eyes to my face and says quickly.

"I beg your pardon, miss, but I have sprained my ankle severely, and—is there any place in the neighborhood where I could remain until able to travel? My name is Compton—Walter Compton—from St. Louis, and—" he hesitates and a spasm of pain contracts his face for a moment.

"Yes," I cry immediately, "you can come home with me!" So I run to get into my discarded articles of wearing apparel, and then springing into my boat, I row to the spot. With great difficulty I succeeded in assisting the stranger into the boat, and then pull slowly homeward. I find papa quite willing to receive the stranger, who after all, proves to be no stranger, but the son of one of papa's old friends. We made him as comfortable as possible, and then followed days and weeks of pleasant companionship. Six weeks from the day upon which I brought Walter Compton home in my boat he asked me to be his wife. I burst into tears. For I love him with all my heart; yet there is that hateful Mr. Comyn! He has never revisited our town since the letter was written in which he asked for the heart and hand of Freda Lowell, but we may reasonably look for him now, at any time. I sob out my story to Walter, my head upon his shoulder. He smiles, and stooping, kisses me.

"Don't cry, sweetheart," he says soothingly. "You shall never marry Mr. Comyn—or any other man but myself, if you really love me! We will explain the whole affair to him and to your father; and Mr. Lowell will not object to me on the score of poverty, for I am a rich man, Freda."

And then some one raps at the door, and the servant announces:

"Miss Freda, your father says please come to the library, Mr. Comyn wishes to see you."

"At last! So it has come, and I must face the music. And my eyes are red with crying, my hair is awfully tousled. I am a sight to make a lover weep. Nevertheless, I'll go just as I am; if I make him hate me, so much the better."

So I leave Walter's side and march straight into the library, with white cheeks, my head defiantly raised.

Mr. Comyn arises to greet me—a fine looking man—but not half as handsome as my Walter. He hesitates, and draws back with intense surprise on his face.

"Mr. Lowell," he ejaculates in bewilderment, addressing my father, "there is some mistake. This is not the young lady."

I clap my hands gleefully, regardless of papa's severest frown. So it is Ritta after all. I'm not two minutes getting her into the library; then I close the door and fly back to Walter's side.

"Yes, it is really Ritta. Mr. Comyn has only mistaken the name; but it is Ritta whom he loves and wishes to marry. And best of all, Ritta loves him in return, and has been grieving in secret all this time.

So there is a double wedding and papa smiles serenely and never frowns now, for he has two rich sons-in-law; and poor little madcap Freda, the bride of wealthy Mr. Compton, becomes quite an envied personage, and there is no longer any "black sheep" in the family.

Greatest Wedding of the Season.

A letter from London says: Since the marriage of the late Czar's daughter to the Duke of Edinburgh there has not, I am told, been such a wedding outfit manufactured in Europe as that prepared for Lady Erymntrude Russell, youngest daughter of the Duke of Bedford. The account of the nuptial ceremony reads something like the lovely princess in an old-fashioned fairy tale. Arriving at historic Westminster Abbey in a stately coach of scarlet and gold, drawn by six horses and attended by powdered footmen of imposing size and gorgeous livery, the bride entered the church and passed up to the choir, followed by the gaze of one of the most illustrious audiences every assembled within the walls of Westminster Abbey. Even to the uneducated eye of man the French wedding gown was a wonderful affair of white velvet, embroidered into stiffness, with real silver thread and luminous pearls, covered by a splendid veil of point lace and sprinkled lavishly with diamonds of superb size and purity, including a $40,000 tiara.

This wedding robe is but a faint hint of the prodigal magnificence of the trousseau, the cost of which was fabulous, including dresses, the buttons of which even were of diamonds, rubbies, and sapphires, embroideries of beaten gold, and iron and bronze of such marvelous workmanship as to be ranked as works of art instead of dress-trimmings; hundreds of pairs of shoes with buckles of precious stones. The looms of the Orient furnished their most exquisite and costly fabrics; China, India and Japan embroideries, and the only English product that figured in the outfit was a lace dress of Honiton, which was worn by the Duchess of Bedford on her wedding day. Marvels of the milliner's art, as well as the lingerie, composed of acres of lace of silk, and of fine linen, came from the continent, nothing made in the country from which this Duke extorts his revenues being considered good enough for the occasion.

A Remarkable Soldier.

One of the most remarkable private soldiers on either side of the late war was a man named Tom Kelly, of the 2d Michigan infantry. He had arms a full hand longer than any man who could be found. He had no more backbone than a snake, and could almost tie himself in a knot. He could tell the date on a silver quarter held up twenty feet away.

When Tom's remarkable qualifications were discovered he was detailed as a scout and spy, and was changed from one department to another. In the capacity of a spy he entered Richmond three times. He entered Vicksburg and preached a serman to the soldiers a week before that city was taken. He was a man who believed that he could not be killed by an enemy and he governed his movements accordingly. During his three and a half years in the service Kelly captured fifty-two Confederates and turned them over as prisoners. He was captured and escaped five times. As a spy, he entered more than thirty Confederate camps and forts. He was fired upon at least one thousand times, and yet was never wounded. He said that he would never die by the hand of an enemy, and his prophecy came true. In the last year of the war, while bringing a captured Confederate scout into camp, both were killed within forty rods of the Union lines by a bolt of lightning.

He Was Regretfully Resigned.

A citizen of Brooklyn was met at the door of his office the other morning by a young man who had a bill to collect.

"For shoeing a horse—$2 for shoeing a horse!" exclaimed the gentleman, as he glanced at the bill. "Why, I haven't owned a horse for the last five years!"

"I don't know anything about that," replied the young man, "but was given the bill to collect."

"Oh, well, I'll pay it. I was just going down to the gas office to protest a bill sent in for the three months that my house was shut up, but I see it's no use. If I have to pay for shoeing another man's horse I might as well pay for some other family's gas."

"Press-toe change," said the dude as he drew his favorite corn from beneath the foot of a Chicago belle.

They had Better Stay Away.

"I like to know about some office under Ceveland?" he said, as he beckoned a lawyer across the street from the door of his saloon.

"Well, what is it?"

"I like to know if I vhas to have some office. My place vhas headquarters last fall for some Gleveland clubs, und all der boys tell me that I vhas sure of something fat."

"Then you are looking for something?"

"Vhell, I dunno. Vhen Gleveland vhas elected der boys began to drop in here. One of 'em he says: "Vhat a bostmaster you will make for Detroit? By George! I vish I vhas you!" Vhell, dot tickles me, you know, until I treat the crowd to peer. Pooty soon anoder crowd comes, und one of der boys calls oudt:

"Let dis convention come to some order. We vhas now in der presence of der next boss of der custom house. I calls for three cheers for Carl Dunder!"

"Vhen he says dot I feel good all oafer, und it seems right to set oop the peer to them."

"I see."

"Vhell, almost eafery night a gang come around to my place to shake me py der hand, and somebody says:

"Hip! Hip! hurrah! Carl Dunder vhas solid mid der coming administration. He picks oundt der fattest office for himself, und he remembers his friends mit der lean ones!"

"When somepody talks like dot I feels shmiley und soft, und I tap a new keg of lager. Now I like to ask you if I vhas right. My poy Shake says I doan't get so much as a shmell of office, und my oldt woman says der poys make a fool out of me."

"I guess they are right."

"Don't you pelief I vhas der gustom-house?"

"No, sir."

"Nor der bost-office?"

"No, sir."

"Don't I haf some place at $2,000 a year?"

"I doubt it."

"Wasn't I even invited down to Washington to see Gleveland go mit der White House?"

"Not unless you invite yourself."

"Vhell! vhell! So Shake und der old woman vhas right, und der poys vhas putting some soft on me!"

"Yes!"

"Dot vhas all right, but I like to say something, und doan' you forget him! To-night dot same growd comes aroundt here, und somebody vhil begin to hurrah for der next bost-master. You ought to be here! Der dog vhill be loose, and I shall haf two glubs handy, and you will see 15 men in sooch a hurry to get oudt doors dot you pelief some earthquakes vhas shaking oop Detroit! Shust come aroundt und see how a disappointed office-seeker will handle two glubs und a puldog!"

Caught on the Fly.

The left fielder in a base ball game is the player who gets left.

"Out on a foul," is the baseballist's way of speaking of a night out on a lark.

Now that the base ball season is at hand "strikes" will be more frequent than ever.

The pitcher that went to the well too often was unable to attend the next base ball match.

Hygienics and high-jinks alike inspire the base ball player to open the spring season on the half shell.

The base ball season has opened in Philadelphia and recently graduated doctors and surgeons from all parts of the country are flocking to Pennsylvania.

Seventy-five per cent. of the League players have adopted the flat bat. Now what is wanted is a rule forbidding players from striking the umpire with the sharp side of it.

The new League rules require baseball pitchers to keep both feet on the ground when delivering the ball. It certainly looks as though this rule would have a tendancy to stop kicking.

Fashion Notes.

Culled from Godey's Lady's Book.

All spring hats are faced with dark blue, red, or green velvet.

Feathers are not seen on any of the new bonnets.

Jersey jackets for street wear are all lined with pale colored satins.

The new woolen lace will be extremely popular for trimming spring and summer gowns.

Bouquets composed of nothing but orange blossoms will be carried by brides this spring.

Hats for every day wear are extensively trimmed with plaid ottoman ribbons.

Pretty little bonnets made of crepe lisse, all plaited and adorned with bows of contrasting color, are a freak of the season.

Scarf like sashes are much worn on dressy costumes, being arranged ingeniously to form part of the draperies.

Plain black hosiery will remain in fashion during the summer, and will be worn with dresses of any color for day and evening alike.

Newspaper reporters are known to be the most truthful of men. Their calling teaches them accuracy, and they could not be untruthful if they would—except. The exception is when, in the course of their business, they are called upon to describe the personal appearance of ladies. Here their gallantry betrays them into overstating the facts.

Like the worm, the roller-skate will turn when trod upon.

It Was Limburger, Not Remorse.

The opera season reminds me of Tagliapetra. Now that that redoubtable poker player, billiardist and masher is gone I may tell a little story of how he once broke up Nilsson, who played Marguerite in New York when he was a member of Strakosch's company. Tag was off and the other baritone was to sing the part of Valentine in "Faust." Tag invited a few German friends to a "small and late" at Morett's and calculated on having a good time. When Tag arrived at Morett's he found that that genial but peculiar eating house did not boast the possession of any Limburger, of which he knew his friends were fond. He rushed out to another establishment and bought a pound. As he was on his way back he was met by Strakosch, who was hunting for him. It seems the other baritone had taken sick and Tag was needed to play the part. Remonstrance was vain. He had to go. He went to the theatre and he laid his Limburger down in a corner while he went to dress, having dispatched a note to his friends to keep it up till he was dead and could join them. After a while he thought him of the Limburger and he found the chorus had got away with half of it. He was mad. He seized what was left, and before he could find a safe place he was called on for the last scene of his part. He jammed the Limburger inside his doublet and rushed on. He died and Marguerite came and threw herself prone on his body. She bent down to kiss him. She kissed him. The audience thought she never acted so well as when she raised herself suddenly and faced them with an expression of horror on her face. It was Limburger. They thought it was remorse.—Ex.

Printing in Greece.

In the present kingdom of Greece printing and journalism are but of recent growth, the Turks, during their domination of the country, keeping down all signs of intellectual life with an iron hand. The first attempt at a printing office was made in 1815, when the Society of Friends of the Muses exerted themselves in having material for an office imported. That pioneer printing office established at Athens, however, had only enough Greek type to set up two folio pages at one time; but even such a small beginning was very useful in disseminating news when the revolution broke out. The demand for trustworthy information during the war of independence led to the establishment of two more presses, one at Hydra and one at Missolonghi. A second press was brought to Athens by Lord Stanhope in 1821; but when the city was retakenly the Turks, in 1826, both presses were destroyed, and new printing offices arose only under the more settled times of King Otto's reign. Since then the progress of printing, and with it publishing and journalism in Greece, has been most rapid. The kingdom, which, according to the census of 1879, numbers 1,677,775 inhabitants, now possesses 90 printing offices, of which 45 are in the capital alone. These offices do their work very creditably, and produce annually from 500 to 600 Greek books and pamphlets, and 135 daily, weekly and monthly journals. From them also issue numerous publications in foreign languages, for which a ready market is found, not only in Greece itself, but throughout the East. The press is perfectly free in the kingdom, and, although this liberty is giving rise to much abuse, it, on the other hand, encourages journalism to an extent which makes it a very profitable business.

Hints for Husbands.

It will soon be time to dig bait—while your wife is house cleaning.

The ring on a woman's finger is only for show, but if you think the ring in her voice is just for show ask her husband.

"A talking machine has just been invented in Vienna," says an exchange. The dickens you say! Why, we married one ten years ago.

The average male head is said to contain 128,000 hairs. You can know at any given time how many you possess by counting each night those which your wife has pulled out during the day and subtracting.

"Belmont, N. H., boasts of a woman who goes out and chops wood with her husband." It is quite a common thing for women to mop the floor with their husbands, but we never heard of chopping wood with them.

A southern woman boasts that she has still in use a rolling pin bought when she was married, sixty-two years ago. Nothing like having a tried and trusty weapon about the house to keep a husband in docile working order.

Anticipating It.

New York Herald.

Now, the rules of the school allowed the young lady to go out only with the father, the brother, or the fortunate young man to whom she might be engaged. So, when Rachael's friend, Marie Kent, went to ask permission to drive with Mr. Wilcox, the principal asked:

"And who is Mr. Wilcox, Miss Marie?"

"He is a friend of mine."

"You know the rules, Miss Marie; he is certainly not your father."

"No," said Marie, demurely.

"You have no half-brother named Wilcox."

"No," said poor Marie.

"Are you engaged to the gentleman?"

"No," said Marie, "but I shall be before we come home."

A beauty without wit resembles a bait without any hook on it.

All Sorts.

"I see they are serving refreshments on roller skates in some of the restaurants," the husband said, as he laid down his paper. "Good gracious!" exclaimed the wife, "have they no plates?"

London critics refer to General Graham's fight near Suakim as "a murderous military scuffle." The only trouble appears to have been that the Arabs scuffled a little livelier than the British did.

Elijah Rawson, a compositor in the office of the United States Miller, of Milwaukee, Wis., now enters his claim as the oldest continuous type-sticker in the United States. He has been at the case fifty-four years. Next.

Distant rumblings from the base ball diamond now agitate the air, and soon will follow the vanguard of the long procession of big-muscled, crooked-fingered, arnica-soaked gentry who pound the pig-skin for $1,800 a year.

A Southern State having created the office of "fowl inspector" the position was immediately applied for by an ex-baseball umpire. He claimed to know all about "fouls," but he appeared to be a little weak in his spelling.

A doctor at Chester, Ill., fed a horse pounded glass to "cut" the worms out of him, and the animal had scarcely kicked his last when they rode the M. D. out of town on a rail. The only experimenting allowed is in the case of a human being.

"A scientist says that the way to sleep is to think of nothing," read Mrs. Smith in a newspaper. "If that be true, I should say that you would sleep all the time, my dear," said her husband. "No doubt, Mr. Smith, for I think a great deal of you."

You can't keep a woman in captivity, my boy, any more than you can a gorilla. She will surely die if she isn't allowed to frisk around through society, jump, so to speak, from limb to limb, and see and be seen to her heart's fullest measure.

An instance has lately come to notice as to how German printers are pestered by the police. At Frankfort the head of the police has issued orders that posters must in future be printed on paper of one of five or six sizes only, while pink paper is quite probibited except for official announcements.

The Dog of Pompeii.

Among the ruins of Pompeii the skeleton of a dog was found stretched across over that of a child. It was conjectured, on the discovery, that the dog, from his position, was attempting to save the child when the eruption of Vesuvius was fatal to the city. The opinion was confirmed by the collar about his neck, which was found to be of curious workmanship. Its inscription stated that the dog was named Delta and belonged to a man named Severinus, whose life he had saved on three occasions; first, by dragging him out of the sea when nearly drowned, then by driving off four robbers who attacked him unawares, and lastly, by his destroying a she wolf, whose cubs he had taken in a grove near Herculaneum. Delta afterward attached himself particularly to the only son of Severinus, and would take no food but what he received from the child's hand.

Sentences of the Osceola Robbers

WELLSBORO, April 9.—The trial of the Osceola Bank robbers was closed to-day in a conviction. No defense was attempted. Thomas Kerwin, alias "Little Mike" Kerwin, was sentenced to restore the stolen property, pay a fine of $1 and costs, and to serve nine years and six months in the Eastern Penitentiary. The others were sentenced to the same fine and to imprisonment as follows: William McPherson, alias Frank McCrane, nine years and two months; Harry Thorne, alias George Havill, nine months; Jack Love, alias James D. Welles, nine years and eleven months; William Harris, alias Charles Lowery, ten years. Lowery is wanted in Shelby, O., for murder, and in Mercer, Pa., for the robbery of an express office.

He Knew She Had Blue Blood.

"I have blue blood in my veins, I'd have you know!" said Mrs. Crimsonbeak to her husband, as a knock-down argument to a discussion they were indulging in at table.

"I thought so," replied Crimsonbeak, sarcastically.

"And why did you think so?" mocked his wife, almost knocking the plaster from the ceiling with her elevated nose.

"Because blood will tell, you know, and that's the kind you are; you can never keep anything to yourself!"

Driving out Nine Hundred Quarrymen.

CHICAGO, April 10.—Information was received from Lemont last night to the effect that two hundred of the striking quarrymen from Joliet went there to-day, and, going from quarry to quarry, drove out the men at that place. About nine hundred men altogether were driven out. Details are meagre, but they do not indicate that anyone is killed or seriously hurt. It is understood that the proprietors of the quarries will ask the governor to call out the militia.

Moody and Sankey in Pittsburg.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—A Christian convention, under the auspices of Evangelists Mood and Sankey, was opened in the Fifth Avenue Music hall this morning. Fully six thousand people were present, and thousands of others failed to gain admission. The convention will close on Sunday evening. All the Protestant denominations of the city have united in these meetings.

THE FATE OF ALL.

[Written for the Daily News.]

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
The flowers shall droop and together be laid,
The grasses shall wither, shall waste and shall die
As the death dealing stroke descends from on high.

The lily that bloometh in meadow so fair,
Is despoiled of its richness and now standeth there
To remind us of all, e'en the low and the high,
Who shall moulder to dust and together shall lie

And thus close around we witness the fall
Of nature's best hand'work, the pride of them all.
From the moss-covered rock to the seedlings that start
A rare, tender vine as the fruit of their heart.

From the blossoming tree to the rich laden vine
And the bright changing ivy that ever doth twine,
As memories sweet twineth round some dear one,
Who has long passed away as fadeth the sun.

AN ANTE-EASTER LAY.

"Shall we cackle a lay,
Or just lay a lay?"
Is the question propounded by Biddy,
While she pass in the hay,
And so clears the way
To a feast for the Easter folks giddy.

"Both the egg and the plume
We bring in their bloom,
If we cannot sing gay Easter sonnets,
Let the ladies perfume,
But bid them make room,
With a chance for our charms on their bonnets."

"If these cares we ally,
'Twill brook no delay,"
Clucks the hen who as Cochin is coaching.
"There is only one way
To lay for this day:
Let's get at it, nor wait for reproaching."

Convicted Militiamen.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—While the officers of the 18th Regiment were busy investigating the charges of bad conduct against some of the members of that body, the officers of the 14th Regiment, which also went to the inauguration at Washington, were not idle. They, too, had a quiet investigation, and the result of it is that fourteen members of Company F were yesterday dishonorably discharged. Among the fourteen are James Kay, the oarsman; William Gettis, George Taylor, a son of Alderman Taylor, and Clinton McDonough. The men quietly got together and tried not to pay any attention to the notice of their discharges. The papers were returned to Colonel Glenn in a bunch

Said Colonel Glenn to-day: "I signed the papers dismissing fourteen men from Company F, and we are not done yet weeding out. More will follow. Captain King has been quietly investigating the reports of the outrageous behavior of his men at Washington, and he reported fourteen men to me and recommended their dismissal. I concurred, and intend to control the regiment, and if those gentlemen want to appeal they have a perfect right to do so. As long as I am colonel they must learn to behave when they go with me anywhere out of the city."

Ex-President Arthur as a Lawyer.

NEW YORK, April 10.—Thousands of handsomely printed cards were distributed yesterday by General Arthur's old law partners, bearing these words:

NEW YORK, April 7, 1885.

DEAR SIR: On the 15th inst. Mr. Chester A. Arthur will resume the practice of the law and connect himself with our firm as counsel.

Yours respectfully,
KNEVALS & RANTOM.

To-morrow the firm will move their law books and briefs into a handsome suite of offices on the fourth floor of the new Mutual Life building, adjoining the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Arthur's own office will be elegantly fitted with soft carpets and furniture upholstered in dark Turkish leather. One of the firm said that General Arthur would resume active relations with the firm, chiefly as advisor in cases. He will go into court frequently, but not so much as the other members.

Chicago's Close Election.

CHICAGO, April 9.—The situation growing out of the close municipal election contest in this city has been complicated by the theft of the ballot box of the third precinct of the third ward. The box was stored in a livery stable on Twenty-second street, where the balloting occurred, and the store room was broken into and the box carried off. The precinct returned 575 for Smith and 266 for Harrison, and the object of the theft is supposed to have been to conceal some irregularities. The fact of the robbery of the ballot box occasioned great excitement in political circles, in view of the recent exposure of the eighteenth ward frauds.

Swept into the Stream.

One Thousand Acres of Land and "Right Smart of Bears."

On the deck of a big Mississippi steamboat stood an aged Southern planter. Indicating by a sweep of his arm the waters the boat was passing over, he said to a passenger from the North: "When I was twelve years old I killed my first bear on a plantation my father was then cutting out of a forest that grew directly over the waters of this bend. That was a mighty good plantation, and there was right smart of bears there, too. But that one thousand acres of land went into the Mississippi years ago."

It is putting no strain upon the figure to say that great forests of youthful hope, womanly beauty and manly strength are swept in the same way every year into the great, turbid torrent of disease and death. Yet it should not be so. That it is so is a disgrace as well as a loss. People are largely too careless or too stupid to defend their own interests—the most precious of which is health. That gone, all is gone. Disease is simple, but to recklessness or ignorance the simplest things might as well be complex as a proposition in Conic Sections. As the huge western rivers, which so often flood the cities along their shores, arise in a few mountain springs, so all our ailments can be traced to impure blood and a small group of disordered organs.

The most effective and inclusive remedy for disease is PARKER'S TONIC. It goes to the source of pain and weakness. In response to its action the liver, kidneys, stomach and heart begin their work afresh, and disease is driven out. The Tonic is not, however, an intoxicant, but cures a desire for strong drink. are unsurpassed by any other Wine. Being produced under Mr. Speer's own personal supervision, its purity and genuineness are guaranteed by the principal Hospitals and Boards of Health who have examined it. The youngest child may partake of it and the weakest invalid use it to advantage. It is particularly beneficial to the aged and debilitated, and suited to the various ailments that affect the weaker sex.

It is in every respect A WINE TO BE RELIED ON.

Speer's Unfermented Grape Juice.

It is the juice of the Oporto Grapes, preserved in its natural, fresh, sweet state as it runs from the press by fumigation, thereby destroying the exciter of fermentation. It is perfectly pure, free from spirits and will keep in any climate.

Speer's Burgundy.

Is a dark rich medium Dry Wine, used by the wealthy classes as a Table or Dinner Wine, and by physicians in cases where a dry wine instead of a sweet port is desired.

Speer's (Socialte) Claret.

Is held in high estimation for its richness as a Dry Table Wine, especially suited for dinner use.

Speer's P. J. Sherry.

Is a Wine of superior character, and partakes of the rich qualities of the grape from which it is made.

Speer's P. J. Brandy.

IS A PURE distillation from the grape, and stands unrivaled in this country for medicinal purposes.

It has a peculiar flavor, similar to that of the grapes from which it is distilled.

About the Same.

NEW YORK, April 12.—At 9 o'clock to-night Colonel Fred Grant, in speaking of his father's condition during the day, said he had coughed a good deal and had altogether a bad day, although the paroxysm of Saturday night had not reoccurred. The general was very low, but Colonel Grant did not apprehend the end would come to-ninght.

Colonel Grant, when asked this evening if it was possible to secure the general's autograph, replied that it was an impossibility at the present and feared it was too late. At 10.45 Rev. Dr. Newmen left the house. In response to a question he said: "I expect a very anxious night. General Grant has had a bad day, and I think there has been a recurrence of the coughing. Dr. Shrady is in the house, and the general at this moment is quietly sleeping."

THE BULLETINS.

3 p. m.—General Grant has been very quiet since the fit of coughing last night. He has taken his nourishment regularly and as well as usual. His pulse is now 72, temperature 99. At the consultation just held Doctors Barker, Sands, Shrady and Douglass were present. The treatment pursued was approved by all.

SHRADY, M. D.

NEW YORK, 6 p. m.—General Grant had after 11 o'clock quite a quiet night. At 4 o'clock this morning he fell into a natural slumber, from which he has just awakened, His pulse is 72; temperature normal; voice strong.

(Signed) DOUGLASS, M. D.

He is Stronger.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Colonel Fred Grant, in speaking of his father today, said the general had done some writing and was then in a comfortable way. A relative of the family left the house about 8 o'clock. He didn't see General Grant but said Mrs. Grant was much worn out and worried with her vigils beside the General's bedside. General Badeau left the Grant residence about 9 o'clock. He said: "General Grant is easier to-night than he has been for a week. He signed his autograph to a number of photographs. The indications are that he will pass a comfortable night."

10 p. m.—General Grant has been very comfortable since the last bulletin. He seemed stronger during the afternoon and walked from room to room with a firmer step. He has just awoke from a two hours' sleep and has taken nourishment. In reply to an inquiry he said he was not in pain. The accumulation of mucus has not disturbed him to-night. He has not required any local application to the throat. Pulse 72, regular and quiet; respiration 16.

Heroic Firemen.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The four-story brick building occupied by John F. Huner as a piano factory in the rear of lots Nos. 511 and 513 West Forty-second street, was gutted by fire early this morning. The building was situated in a tenement house district and there was great excitement among the tenants. The loss is estimated at $20,000; insurance $17,000.

At 2.45 o'clock, when the fire was practically out, a number of firemen were on the second and third floors washing down the walls. The third floor was burdened with a number of heavy pianos, and suddenly the charred beams supporting it gave way with a snap. The men on that floor went through to the second, and with the broken timbers fell upon their comrades. Cries and groans rose up from the interior of the building, and the firemen who were in the street made a rush into the court yard in front of the factory. Ambulances soon rattled through the streets and drew up in front of the piano factory, where one hundred men were at work bringing out the firemen. It was believed that some were dead, and the excitement was intense. Man after man was brought out alive, until nine bruised and wounded fellows had been placed in the ambulance and driven away to Roosevelt hospital. Their names are Lieutenant Samuel Reed and Firemen Henry T. McBride, John S. Price and Michael Campbell, of engine 54; Firemen George W. Greer, of engine 26; Captain John Colby and Lieutenant O'Rouk, of hook and ladder No. 4; and Fireman Thomas Duffy and Richard Gorman. Gorman and Greer, it is believed, as fatally injured. The wounds of the other men are considered very serious.

State Legislation.

HARRISBURG, April 14.—In the house this afternoon a resolution setting apart Friday morning sessions for the consideration of appropriation bills was adopted. The senate bill for the organization of congressional districts was finally passed, yeas 116, nays 53. (The bill which has been amended now goes to the senate for its consideration of the amendments.) The bill to regulate the practice of pharmacy and sale of poisons failed of final passage, the vote standing, yeas 93, nays 77, not a constitutional majority voting in the affirmative.

Will there be War?

ST. PETERSBURG, April 11.—The Journal de Saint Petersburg, speaking evidently by official inspiration, comments upon the recent government utterances in the British parliament upon the Penjdeh incident as premature. It says it thinks it would have been preferable for the English ministers to have suspended judgment until the receipt of more complete information. They should have acted on the supposition that it was unlikely that Russian generals acquainted with the intentions of the Russian government acted without a reason. They should have borne in mind that collisions such as that which occurred on the Kushk are always possible in the presence of a violent and undisciplined Asiatic population. The Penjdeh incident, concludes the Journal, was certainly an untoward event, because it may adversely affect the negotiations pending between Russia and England which still justify the hope for peace. The war feeling here is overwhelmingly strong. The czar appeared at the theatre last evening. The audience —still enthusiastic over the news from Penjdeh, on the general assumption that Komaroff's conduct had the imperial approval—arose when they saw the czar and shook the building with an ovation of applause.

LONDON, April 13—1 p. m.—The cabinet meeting, the summons for which was issued yesterday, is now in progress. Nothing is known positively in regard to the character of the deliberations, but the great war question is believed to be absorbing the ministers, and the result of the council is awaited with anxious eagerness. Instructions have been telegraphed to Sir Peter Lumsden to transmit to London as quickly as possible his report and that of Captain Yates, of the conflict on the Kushk river. At the various military and naval stations preparations for war continue to be vigorously made.

A Constantinople dispatch to-day says: Afghan news has greatly excited all classes. Two days ago war was looked upon as certain, and the idea prevailed among natives and foreigners that Russia might be expected to make a dash for the Bosphorus, and at any moment the British fleet might appear in the Dardannelles. Nothing much is talked about excepting the prospectt of an Anglo-Turkish alliance. The sultan hesitates to adopt any positively compromising attitude, being unwilling to fearlessly trust England without some proof of the reality of British friendship before incurring the enmity of Russia. Press agents consequently received instructions to spread the idea in foreign journals that Turkey will preserve neutrality in case of war. Nevertheless, your correspondent is assured in a strong quarter that Turkey will join England should war occur, being compelled to do so by the force of circumstances. General Komaroff's raid not being followed by an English declaration of war, the present opinion among foreign diplomatists here is that matters may be arranged for the present with the usual Gladstone timidity. But all think tha the struggle can only be deferred.

Rumors of Another Battle.

LONDON, April 14—5 p. m.—The cabinet has been summoned to an immediate council, in consequence of the receipt by the government of further important dispatches in regard to the Afghan question. There are rumors in the air of another battle on the banks of the Kushk. The announcement has created much excitement. It is believed this caused the sudden call for the cabinet meeting, and it is said the government has just received dispatches stating a battle occurred between the Russians and the Afghan outposts. A declaration of war is imminent, it is believed. If the rumor of the fight is verified, nothing can prevent war. The preparations for war continue with increasing vigor. A force of extra workmen has been engaged at the Chatham dock yard to-day.

A special dispatch from Berlin to the Paris Journal Debats, says that England and Russia have not sought the good offices of Germany as a mediator in the Afghan difficulty, and Germany has not offered to act in this capacity. Lord Dufferin has informed the government that the ameer consents to the passage of British troops through Afghanistan. The Daily News, in an editorial this morning, says: "If General Komaroff's reports were the only answer Russia would give, there would be little need of the formality of a declaration of war. The guns would go off of themselves. We have rather to fear blind, evasive answers."

The Son of a Wealthy Swiss Dying.

LOUISVILLE, April 10.—Christian Leonhardt Albion, the son of a wealthy Swiss, Jacob Hans Albion, Mayor of Larsnaus, Graubunden, Canton, Switzerland, died suddenly yesterday afternoon in the medical ward of the City Hospital. He was about 25 years old, and was a tramp. A few days ago he was found dying in an outhouse, into which he had crawled, and was taken to the hospital. There it was discovered that he was dying from consumption of the bowels, produced by constant exposure and his habits of life. A passport, showing his family connections in the old country, was found on him. He came to this country to marry a young lady who had immigrated to an Eastern city. For some reason the marriage did not take place, and it is supposed that he turned tramp from disappointment.

Frost and Snow in Virginia.

PETERSBURG, Va., April 11.—There was a heavy frost throughout this section last night and, as there was rain this morning and in some neighborhoods light snows, fears are entertained for the safety of the fruit crop. The indications are that there will be a very full crop if not damaged by frost or cold weather before the first of next month.

A Hen's Infatuation for a Cow.

MIDDLETOWN, April 13.—Patrick Doyle has a cow on his dairy farm near this village whose life is made miserable by a hen's singular attachment for her. For over a year the hen has been an inseparable companion of the cow, and spends all of the time, when not on her nest or joining the other chickens when they are fed, perched on the cow's back. There she roosts at night, whether the cow may be in the barn, the barnyard, or the pasture. The cow does not approve of this close companionship, and is always trying to shake the hen off her back or whisk her off with her tail. The hen is always prepared for these attempts, and when the cow lowers her head and shakes her shoulders the hen trots along her back beyond the effects of the shaking. If this brings her within reach of a possible whisk of the cow's tail, she watches it closely, and at the first movement of that appendage she trots back again to a place of safety between the cow's horns. At times the cow will suddenly start on a dead run around a field or the barnyard, lowering her head, lashing her tail and bellowing, as if to terrify the hen into taking her departure. The hen will then scramble to and fro on the cow's back to maintain her position, but the result of this manœuvre on the part of the cow is, nine times out of ten, to force its unwelcome companion to fly off. The cow is no sooner at rest than the hen steals up and mounts again to her perch. This amusing scene is witnessed almost daily by people who go to the farm for the purpose.

Married in Spite of All.

OAKLAND, Md., April 12.—Ashford M. Moore, the Postmaster at Independence, W. Va., came to this place on an early train Thursday morning. On the next train from the West came Miss Carrie Wright, only daughter of a wealthy mine owner near Newburg. They hastened to a minister's and the ceremony was performed, when a telegram was received asking for the girl's arrest. It was too late and the happy couple went East on a bridal trip. Later in the same day at the same place W. E. Conley and Ella Bucklew, of Concord, another runaway couple, were married. They rode several miles horseback across country, pursued, but escaped by taking a local freight train at Newburg

BRAXTON, W. Va., April 12.—[Special.]—Quite a sensation reigns in the western portion of this county over the escape of Richard M. Westfall, heretofore a respected citizen. Westfall has excited some comment by his attentions to Mrs. Ware, the wife of a neighbor, but nothing serious was apprehended. Two weeks ago he began selling off his property, saying he was going West. His family made preparations to accompany him. When everything was ready Westfall went to Weston, the nearest railroad town, to see about transportation. Reaching there he was joined by Mrs. Ware and the two fled for parts unknown. Both leave families, Westfall's being in destitute circumstances, as he took everything with him.

Fatal Collision.

NEW YORK, April 13.—In this city at a few minutes after 9 o'clock this morning, three trains on the Third avenue line were proceeding on their way down town. They were very close together and packed with passengers, many of them being merchants and brokers. The first train pulled up at Hanover street station and signalled train 100, right behind it. Train 100 stopped and signalled No. 204, but the latter was only fifteen feet away and could not be stopped. The engine crashed into the rear car of No. 100, tearing the wood work to pieces. The steam pipes burst, creating the wildest excitement among the passengers, some of whom climbed out of the windows and down to the street below. Women fainted and the utmost confusion prevailed. The street below was filled with debris. The body of Fireman Charles McCarthy was found in the engine, held fast by the wreck. Both of his legs were broken and he was injured internally. He will die. A relief train soon came and took the passengers off. Many of them were severely injured, but it is impossible to ascertain their names at this writing. John D. Messler, the engineer of the last train, was arrested and taken to the New street station. Taking into consideration the enormous traffic of the road at that hour, it is to be wondered at that many persons were not killed.

Another Hotel Burned.

CLEVELAND, April 12.—A fire which originated on the seventh floor of the Stillman hotel early this morning burned down to the fifth floor, causing a loss of $50,000. The servants, about sixty in number, who were on the upper floor, barely had time to escape, many losing all their clothing. A heavy beam fell in front of the door to Harry Stevens' room on the sixth floor and shut him in. He was rescued from a window on an extension ladder. Beyond a few cuts from broken window glass nobody was hurt.

Two Fires.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, April 12.—The Excelsior knitting mills, owned by J. T. Shimer, were destroyed by fire last night, loss 25,000, partially insured. The fire was possibly of incendiary origin.

At 5 o'clock this morning the residence of Mr. Gannon was totally destroyed by fire, together with $250 in cash in a bureau drawer. The fire was caused by the explosion of a coal oil lamp. No insurance. The family escaped in their night clothes.

Hours of Work Increased.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—An order has been issued at the Post-office Department requiring the clerks in the First Assistant Postmaster General's office to work until further orders from 6.30 to nine p. m. in addition to their regular hours. The order was necessitated by the great accumulation of papers in this office, nearly 15,000 of which are still unbriefed.

Boy Robbers in Georgia.

ATHENS, Ga., April 10.—A band of dime novel robbers has been broken up in Antioch, a thriving town in Oglethorpe County. Three months ago the stores of Messrs. McWharter, Adkins and others were simultaneously raided. The most rigid search failed to give a clue to the criminals. At frequent intervals since these depredations have been repeated.

On Wednesday night a citizen happened to pass an unfrequented house, in the cellar of which he noticed a light. Venturing in he surprised a band of boys masked and going through strange manœuvres. His advent put them to flight, but the discovery soon solved the mystery of the frequent burglaries. They had been reading current boys' literature and had organized according to the plot in one of the stories. Seven of the ring-leaders had keys to each of the business houses, which they would enter at wi ll, bring their boot to the celler, where distribution would take place.

They had signs pass-words and many mysterious ceremonies. The disclosure has brought grief to the many families of the boys.

Canada to Albany.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 12.—The police are harboring to-day Mrs. White, 82 years of age, who has tramped nearly all the way from Canada, and is on the way to a small town, thirty-two miles west of Albany, where she says she has two daughters and a son. She says that after fifty years of married life her husband died, and the money sent to her by children having been used to defray the burial and doctor's expenses, she has been several months on her long tramp. She was born in New York State, and comes of Quaker stock. She is wonderfully well preserved. Efforts will be made in the morning to obtain railroad passes for her to Albany. She has had twelve children. She wears a neat white cap, black dress, knits a good deal, and occasionally smokes a short black pipe.

A Liquor War at St. Clair.

POTTSVILLE, April 9.—Eight keepers of drinking saloons at St. Clair, among whom were some of the most prominent politicians of the place, applied to this term of court for licenses. The Court refused all of them and granted but one license, and that to a newcomer. The refusals were procured through the Law and Order Society on evidence that the applicants, many of whom have kept saloons for twenty or thirty years, have been selling on Sundays and election days and have permitted gambling and disorderly conduct. The business men who joined the Law and Order Society will be boycotted by the liquor interests.

Searching for the Dead Miners.

SHENANDOAH, Pa., April 12.—Two gangs of men were organized this morning and the work of searching for the bodies of the victims of the Cuyler Colliery disaster was resumed. The "crash" is settled sufficiently to permit the men to work, and they have made fair progress during the day. Early this afternoon the carcases of the two mules driven by McLaughlin were found, and it is thought the body of the driver will be reached to-night or to-morrow morning The prospects of recovering the bodies of the men in the fourth lift are considered good.

Rumors about the Pope.

ROME, April 14.—The periodic rumor of the pope's intention to leave Rome is again current. The marked favor shown the ultramontane cardinal, Oreglia, by the holy father is interpreted rather hastily as proof that this time the report is worthy of credence. This much is true: Leo III has counselled Cardinal Oreglia to present a proposal to the camerlengo to arrange the meeting of the next conclave outside of Italy, should the Italians attempt the slightest interference with its labors. Oreglia's nomination is very disagreeable to the quirinal.

War Against Guatemala.

LA LIBERTAD, April 12.—A treaty of peace has been signed between the gan Salvador and Honduras, and the latter republic has joined the alliance against Guatemala. No arrangements have as yet been made with Guatemala. The armies of San Salvador and her allies are advancing on the city of Guatemala from various points and are everywhere welcomed by the populace. Many of the disbanded Guatemalian troops are joining the allied forces.

Celebrating Jefferson's Birthday.

YORK, Pa., April 13.—The Jefferson Democratic Association of York held its annual meeting to-night and elected Lieut-Gov. C. F. Black President and E. D. Zeigler, Esq., Vice-President. The birthday of Thomas Jefferson was duly celebrated. Addresses were delivered by Gov. Black, Col. Levi Maish, and others. The association is in a flourishing condition and has just handsomely furnished its rooms.

A Fish in Troubled Waters.

NEW YORK, April 12.—The jury in the case of James D. Fish at 12.30 this morning rendered a verdict of guilty on counts charging him with embezzling funds of the bank. Sentence was deferred. An appeal will be taken.

"Blind Tom" Insane.

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 11.—Under proceedings on an inquisition of idiocy before the court of ordinary at this place Blind Tom, the famous blind pianist, was to-day placed under the guardianship of General James N. Bethune.

The Delaware Peach Crop.

WILMINGTON, Del., April 10.—Advices to The Morning News from Laurel, Del., state that the peach buds have greatly developed during the last week, placing them in a critical condition in case of a low temperature.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—The funeral services over the remains of Lillie Jones took place in the Episcopal church at 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon before a very large congregation. Mr. Jones desires us, in connection with this announcement, to return thanks on behalf of himself and wife to the numerous friends who have aided them and exhibited sympathy in so many ways. These kind acts, these evidences of fellow feeling bind up the broken hearts and dissipate the anguish of affliction. Could all the fairest flowers in the conservatories of the world be plucked and arranged in one bouquet how magnificent would it be, Even more beautiful and more satisfying to the human heart are these evidences of universal sympathy gathered, as they are, from the hearts of all the people of the community and exhibited so spontaneously and delicately.

—Rev. John Hewitt preached a sermon in the Episcopal church on Sunday evening which for real beauty, eloquence, logic and effectiveness we have never heard excelled. It was too excellent in every particular for us to even attempt to give our readers an adequate idea of what it was like, and we can only promise them that if we can get possession of the manuscript and can obtain the reverend gentleman's permission we shall reproduce it in these columns soon, although such reproduction is in itself insufficient, as it always is with a speaker who accompanies his deliverances with such matchless graces of manner as Reverend Hewitt is complete master of.

Bellefonte Ahead.

There has been made at the Bellefonte Glass Factory by William Bryant, glass blower, and Reuben Clark, gatherer, 4800 feet of glass per week during the period of 24 consecutive weeks. This remarkable feat has never before been equalled in Bellefonte and competent persons doubt if the history of glass manufacturing in the United States contains anything to equal it. If anyone can give a similar good record in this country Messrs. Bryant and Clark will be pleased to hear from him. Meanwhile, they are the champions of America.

—Persons having claims against the Snow Shoe Presbyterian church are requested to present them to the trustees—W. A. Lathrop, Rob't C. Gilliland and C. Boak.

SPECIAL MENTION.

—Arbor day comes in the wrong time of the year for due observance in Centre county, as all the rural schools are closed. Perhaps November would be a better month in this county.

Miss Emma S. Snyder has returned from Philadelphia with a large line of millinery goods. She will have her grand opening on the 22d of April. She invites the citizens of Bellefonte and Centre county to call and examine the display. ap16 4tw 6td

EDITOR'S TABLE.

Golden Days for April comes smiling up to our table, filled with the usual amount o choice literature. It would be useless for us to try to eulogize on its many valuable qualities as they are so many and varied that we would find ourselves inadequate to the undertaking. With each succeeding issue it becomes better and more interesting, thereby proving to its readers that the publishers are sparing no effort to make it the leading paper in the United States for boys and girls Published by James Elverson, Philadelphia, Pa.

Grace T. Coolidge, the well known contributor to the Youth's Companion, Wide-Awake and St. Nicholas, is now contributing added attractions to the Philadelphia Weekly Press by controlling its department devoted to amusements for boys, social clubs, church entertainments, etc. This feature is meeting with favor from the general public and will undoubtedly add a new lustre to the already bright pages of the Press. As a general newspaper it is unexcelled, and should be read by all desiring good reliable information. Address The Press, Philadelphia, Pa.

The April number of Doreas, a magazine of woman's handiwork, comes to our table filled with design patterns, interesting illustrations in the art of house adornment and much valuable reading matter to attract and fascinate the ladies. It is thoroughly first-class in all its litertry productions, and its many suggestions to women on fancy work designs are not surpassed by any periodical published. Price, $1 per year in advance. Doreas Magazine, 842 Broadway, New York.

The Naughty Cows.

For the DAILY NEWS.

MR. EDITOR: Having read several articles on the perambulating cow, recently written for your paper, and believing the one written by a councilman to have nearly covered the facts, I would still suggest a few more. It is much easier to sweep before other people's door than our own, or at least to try to. Why one of the most useful of domestic animals is so vigorously assailed, I cannot understand, unless it is silly prejudice. Some ladies will faint to see a cat enter their house, and believe in the total extermination of them, while they will kiss and hug a nasty poodle. Some men will go crazy over a horse, and denounce the sight of a cow, and, vice versa. So you see taste differs, and the animal knows it too every time. The horse is a noble animal and to the rich man may afford him much pleasure and enjoyment. The cow is a useful animal and to the poor man is a comfort and a support to his struggling family. The cat is a vigilant animal and keeps want away from many a door. The poodle is a passtime and ruins many a family. In talking about filth and evils we often eschew that which is abundant upon our own premises, although of another kind and odor, to berate others that we should first abate. We often, too, strain at a gnat and gulp down an elephant. A rule that only applies to our neighbor is a poor one and should be repealed. It is the duty of every good citizen to prevent as much as possible, any thing that will annoy his neighbor. If the cow question is only one of filth, as the articles upon the subject preponderate in that direction, then we shall ask the question why the cow is singled out? The horse and the cow are both the subjects of the barnyard. The horse is permitted to be tied upon our streets from early dawn to dewy eve, in front of our houses and business places, making unsightly barnyards on our streets and in front of our residences, on the crossings, etc. Some people see filth in one direction; some in another. I have the first time to learn of disease being propagated from the unsightly and odoriferous manure pile, but from the stagnant pool, the filthy gutter, and the decomposition of vegetable matter in unclean cellars—some, too, that have not been cleaned for years—is the fruitful source of malignant form of disease. These great sources and promoters of sickness and death should be diligently inquired into and cleansed by the proper authorities and thus avert much evil from the inhabitants of our, by nature, healthful and lovely town. I should like to hear from some one that knows, what greater privileges the horse has over the cow to make a barnyard of our beautiful streets. Let some one answer. More anon.

AMERICUS.

[We publish the above without endorsing its sentiments. In reply to his request for information as to the privileges of the horse over the cow, even a child might answer that the horse must, of necessity, be used on the streets, while the cow can as easily be kept in an enclosure, to the benefit of the cow.

While there may be some ladies who would rather have a poodle dog than a cow as a pet there is a greater number who would not pet either, but would relegate each to its proper sphere—the cow to furnish nourishing milk and the poodle to total extermination.—ED.]

On the same subject somebody writes about as follows: There is a cessation in the discussion of bucolic theme by councilman, preacher, layman and chronic grumbler. The cow yet abides and enjoys the hospitalities of an indulgent and perhaps considerate and appreciative public. What an ignoring of hallowed memories when a "ready writer" has written as his choicest sentiment "cow and filth." And the cattle upon a "thousand hills." "Yea," come, buy wine and milk, without money, and without price." What better than milk illustrates growth as a factor in highest culture? And then look up and see "the milky way" made brilliant by the ways of ethereal messengers.

COW AND MILK

Is it not better than under present municipal statute to think kindly of the cow?—to bear in mind the beautiful milk, whiter than "the driven snow"—and so it will be no hard task to tolerate the presence of an animal, a prisoner without her consent, and that would if she could, seek greener pastures upon a "thousand hills," where there would be no one to call her ugly names.

Don't Feel Bad About It.

The following letter will explain itself. We assure the writer as well as all the people of Lock Haven, that no hard feelings are entertained for the firemen of that city. The reason they did not come to the aid of Bellefonte was understood and we have not heard even a criticism regarding it. Don't be disturbed by floating rumors that you may hear about it:

LOCK HAVEN, April 4, 1885.

Editor Bellefonte Republican:

We learn with regret that the people of Bellefonte are under the impression that the reason the firemen of Lock Haven did not respond to the call for aid during the late fire in your place was because they wished to be assured of pay before starting. This impression is very unjust toward us. A more willing set of men never waited the opportunity to answer the call. We trust, therefore, you will in justice to us give place to the following facts: Our firemen promptly answered the bell, hastened to the depot, and then were reluctantly compelled to wait more than two hours for transportation, and when at last it was furnished, your call was countermanded. No one man thought of pay, and those who make the charge utter a libel on the firemen of Lock Haven and cast a reflection on the institution itself. No mercenary thoughts ever enter their minds in the hour of danger. A higher standard is their's, and if you knew how they chafed under the unavoidable delay, you would not for a moment cherish an impression that reflects the least discredit on the firemen of Lock Haven. No set of men were ever more willing and anxious to help their neighbors than they were on the night referred to. "Let justice be done though the heavens fall."

Respectfully,
C. F. KELLER,
Chief Engineer.

The Place to Live.

A description of the fine weather which the people of Portland, Oregon, are now enjoying reads very attractively. It is contained in the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin and is as follows: "Although common report represents Oregon as excessively rainy in the winter and spring, the experience of this season is to the contrary. There has not been a really rainy day in Portland since the 25th of February. Throughout the month of March there have been few days on which Mount Hood, Mount St. Helen's and Mount Adams were not distinctly visible. These mountains are all covered with perennial snow, and are from forty to sixty miles away. Emigrants coming on the first of April were astonished to see boys bathing in the Willamette river. The trees are in blossom, and many of them in leaf, and have been so for some days Many farmers are coming into Oregon this year to escape the severe winters of the middle and eastern states."

Important Events in Stormstown.

STORMSTOWN, April 13, 1885.

Winter and General Grant are both holding out well, and while we would be loth to part with the latter the former may disappear as fast as he pleases. As soon as the daily papers arrive here they are at once opened for the purpose of reading the latest news from the General.

The Juniata mines have been closed down since the last day of March on account of freight rates, but we have reason to believe that things have been satisfactorily adjusted and work will be resumed in a week at most. So says a dispatch from Supt. Pierpoint.

Work on the roads was in progress until stopped by the recent snow.

While John Gray, Jr., was hauling stones on the road his team took fright at the whistle at the mines and ran off. The wagon was upset and John left in the rear. After running a short distance they were stopped, but not until one of the horses had cut a gash in one of his legs. This won't do, John; you must hold on to the lines better than that.

We are sorry to report that Mr. Isaac Lamburn, one of our most highly respected citizens, is seriously ill. He is in a paralyzed condition, but we hope that through the skillful attention of Dr. Tobin, he may be greatly benefited.

It is our painful duty to record the death of Miss Lizzie Waite, of near Stormstown, who died at Tyrone last Friday at 20 minutes after 4 o'clock, of inflammation of the bowels. She celebrated her 22d birthday on last Easter Sunday. She was a member of the United Brethren church and a true Christian. She was beloved by all who knew her. A widowed mother, five sisters and six brothers survive to mourn an irreparable loss.

THE WONDER

Is becoming universal as to how such an immense sale could be created in Lowell for HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. But, my friend, if you could stand behind our counter a week and hear what those say who are using it, the reason would appear as clear as the noon-day sun. The real curative power of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA demonstrates itself in every case where our directions are faithfully regarded. We would that we might get before the people a fractional part of the confidence that is expressed to us every day in this medicine by those who have carefully noted (without prejudice) its effects upon the blood and through that upon the whole system, stimulating all the functions of the body to perform the duties nature requires of them. Try a bottle and satisfy yourself.

Cold Hands and Feet.

LOWELL, Feb. 3, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—About one year ago my daughter commenced taking your Sarsaparilla. At that time she had very little appetite; could take no long walks, and her face was badly broken out with a humor. She was low-spirited; troubled with cold hands and feet; her blood seemed to be poor, and she was in a condition which caused us great anxiety. After taking one bottle of your Sarsaparilla she began to improve; and she now has a good appetite and can take much longer walks. Her humor is nothing compared with what it was one year ago. She is in better spirits, is not troubled with cold hands and feet as previously. And I attribute this improvement in her condition largely to your Sarsaparilla. She has taken six bottles, and intends to continue its use. I was inclined to oppose the trial of it at first. I now have great faith in it as a blood purifier. Very truly yours,

CROSBY'S

VITALIZED

PHOS-PHITES,

Composed of the Nerve-giving principles of the Ox-Brain and the Embryo of the Wheat and Oat.

This is a standard preparation with all physicians who treat mental or nervous disorders. The formula is on every label. Its chemical composition is superintended by a Professor of Chemistry.

As it is identical in its composition with brain-matter, it is rapidly absorbed, and quickly relieves the depression from intellectual efforts, fatigue, loss of memory, or mental irritability.

Sleeplessness, irritation, nervous exhaustion, inability to work or study, is but a brain-hunger—in urgent cases, brain starvation. This brain nutriment quickly feeds the hungry nerves and restores brain power. It is a cure for nervous disorders and debility in old or young.

Brain-Workers Need Brain-Food.

Crashing through a Bridge.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., April 10.—A thrilling accident, which resulted fatally to two trainmen, occurred on the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, near Connellsville, about 9 o'clock last night. East bound freight train No. 77 left Connellsville promptly on time shortly after 8 o'clock. At Indian creek the recent rains had great swollen the stream, and the train was slacked up to cross over. The middle of the bridge was reached, when, as one of the crew said, he heard a sudden crack. The next instant the entire super-structure gave way. Bridge and train were precipitated into the waters, carrying with them the entire crew of the train. The locomotive, eighteen coke cars and the material of the bridge were twisted together in a chaotic mass. Fortunately several of the cars were piled up so high that the topmost were slightly above the water, and those of the crew who had escaped uninjured managed to crawl upon it and escape drowning. Conductor Harry H. Fuller was riding upon the engine at the time of the accident. Before he realized his terrible danger the locomotive had overturned and he was buried beneath it. His body was still beneath the wreck this morning, all efforts to rescue it being fruitless. His brother, Benjamin Fuller, was on the second car behind the engine. The car jumped up against the locomotive and almost instantly killed him, crushing his body terribly, Engineer Acheson and Fireman Reynolds both made marvellous escapes. After the warning note of the cracking timbers had been heard, Acheson found himself floundering in the water. He made a grab for a piece of the debris and managed to climb up on top of one of the cars that had piled up above the water. The fireman was thrown out into the stream. He clutched a piece of a car and while floating down the stream was rescued. The other men of the crew succeeded in escaping with but a few bruises. Not a vestige of the bridge remained. The cars and locomotive were so completely demolished, that they are a total loss. The loss will amount to about $30,000. The bridge was an iron structure about 75 feet long. It was supposed to be perfectly safe. The supposition is that the high stage of water caused the middle to be partially undermined, which left the centre beams but poorly supported. It was built in 1872, and went down on the first trip that was made upon it, by which the contractor, John Wilhelm, was seriously injured. Both of the men who were killed had but recently been married.

War Inevitable.

LONDON, April 9.—The latest dispatches from the Afghan frontier state that the fight at Murghab was a most stubborn one. The battle was fought in a driving rain storm, which rendered many of the muzzle-loading arms carried by both forces ineffective. The Afghans fought with great desperation, and bravely opposed, step by step, the advance of the Russians. Two companies of Afghans defended one position until they were completely annihilated by a deadly artillery fire opened on them by the Russians. The Afghans retreated in perfect order after inflicting some severe losses. The Russians were evidently surprised by the stubborn opposition, and did not follow up their advantage, being evidently content with the capture of the camp. The British officers who were present during the fight are loud in their praises of the valor displayed by the Afghans. Officers at once proceeded to the headquarters of Sir Peter Lumsden, the English commissioner, and made a full report of the fight to that official.

4 P. M.—The excitement grows apace. The people are in a ferment and the war fever is once more rampant. No further dallying with Russia should now be indulged in, is the cry, but a declaration of War should at once be promulgated. The cabinet has been summoned and is now in session. The outcome of the meeting is awaited with feverish anxiety, and it is fervently hoped that an advance by British forces now in India will be ordered without delay. The grain markets are firm, and there have been sharp advances in cereals of all kinds. Wheat has risen fully six shillings per quarter.

News from Gen. Grant.

NEW YORK, April 9.—There was no change in the condition of Gen. Grant to-day. The following cablegram expressive of the solicitude of Queen Victoria was received on Wednesday:

AIX LES BAINES, April 8.—Mrs. General Grant, New York: The queen, who feels deeply for you in your anxieties, commands me to inquire after General Grant.
(Signed) DOWAGER MARCHIONESS OF ELY.

The following reply was sent today:

NEW YORK, April 9.—To the Marchioness of Ely, Aix Les Baines: Mrs. Grant thanks the queen for her sympathy, and directs me to say General Grant is no better.
(Signed) COLONEL GRANT.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The following bulletin, issued at midnight, will show Grant's condition at that time:

MIDNIGHT.—General Grant has been quiet during the evening. He has dozed most of the time and at present is inclined to fall into natural sleep. Thus far the administration of an anodyne has not been necessary, as the patient suffers no pain. The pulse is 60 and temperature normal. He has taken the usual amount of nourishment. [Signed.] SHRADY.

A Visit to Ireland.

DUBLIN, April 8.—The prince and princess of Wales and their eldest son, Prince Albert Victor, slept on board the royal yacht Osborne at Holly Head last night. They left Holly Head at a quarter past 6 o'clock this morning and arrived at Kingstown at half-past 11. The Osborne was escorted across the channel by the Enchantress, a paddle-wheel yacht belonging to the navy. Large numbers of people had assembled upon the docks to greet the royal visitors. Kingstown is crowded with people and the town is profusely decorated with flags and bunting. Numbers of the excursion steamers thronged the bay, decked out with gay colored bunting, and six vessels of the channel squandron were in waiting, arrayed with the flags of all nations and brilliant with various colored steamers. The Osborne was sighted when still ten miles out at sea, and as she drew nearer was greeted with salvos of artillery from the men of war. When the Osborne touched the dock and the royal party disembarked the throng raised a loud and enthusiastic cheer.

Dublin presents a lively appearance, but there are many indications that there is no great popular enthusiasm. Outside the route of the procession the decoration of the city is far from being general. Another flag has been substituted for the missing one, and is now floating over the Mansion house.

Earl Spencer, lord lieutenant of Ireland, received the prince and his party and the town commission presented an address of welcome. The princess at the same time was made the recipient of numerous thousands, kept up a continuous cheering during the reception, and cheered loud and long as the royal guests proceeded to Dublin. They arrived at Dublin at 2 o'clock and were accorded a splendid reception. In answer to the address of welcome presented to him by the citizens' committee, the prince said he was delighted to renew his acquaintance with Dublin. In the passage through the streets of the city the party were everywhere greeted with enthusiasm. The houses on both sides of the avenues along which they proceeded were adorned with beautiful decorations, and windows and roofs were crowded with spectators eager to catch a glimpse of the future king and queen.

The National Guard.

PITTSBURG, April 7.—The commission appointed by Governor Pattison to inquire into the alleged misconduct of the National Guard at Washington met this afternoon at the 18th Regiment headquarters, in the Patterson Block, of Sixth Street. Judge-advocate Pettit, Inspector-general Goddard and Aids Wilson and Denning composed the commission. In the army-rooms a dozen or more of the witnesses, members of the 18th Regiment, were gathered to await their coming before the commision. The board, before calling witnesses, looked over the testimony in secret session that had been already taken in the case by boards of officers in the two regiments whose members were charged with alleged misconduct at Washington. Nearly 100 officers and privates were called upon to testify. All denied having participated in any unlawful acts. A few admitted that they had seen men in uniform carry bottles and fruit out of a grocery store, but all were positive that they were not members of Western regiments, if they belonged to the State troops at all.

The members of the commission left the city this evening. Before going a clean bill of health was given to the 18th Regiment.

The Election in Chicago.

CHICAGO, April 8.—On the face of the returns, every precinct in the city having been heard from, the vote for mayor stands: Harrison, dem., 42,920; Smith, rep., 42,586. Harrison's plurality, 334. Devine, dem., for treasurer, is elected by 1,300 majority, Plant, rep., for city clerk, is elected by 92 majority. Washburn, rep., for city attorney, is elected by 1,000 majority. These figures may vary slightly. The local committee of public safety charge that frauds were perpetrated in three or four of the wards, and declare that a number of prosecutions will follow. The republican managers, it is declared this morning, will contest Harrison's election, and claim to have evidence of fraud upon which to base the contest.

All Right According to Garland.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Attorney General Garland has rendered an opinion relative to the alleged political disabilities of General A. R. Lawton, nominated for minister to Russia, and subsequently withdrawn from the senate. The attorney general says that the pardon granted by President Johnson was the only immunity ever granted in such cases and holds that the Fourteenth amendment cannot be retroactive. Attorney General Garland himself stands in exactly the same condition in regard to his political disabilities as does Lawton. There is no doubt that in view of this decision Lawton will be commissioned and sent to St. Petersburg at once.

The Norfolk Bank Failure.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—Dr. H. McDonald, president of the Pacific Bank, of this city, and who was a Presidential candidate before the Prohibition Convention last year, is a creditor of the Exchange National Bank, Norfolk, Va., which lately suspended, for nearly $200,000. He owned 1000 shares of its capital stock, besides having about $70,000 on deposit in it. His son, when interviewed last night, admitted these facts, adding, should the amount prove a total loss, his father could stand it without complaining. Dr. McDonald is possessed of immense wealth, so the loss does not cause him the slightest embarrassment.

Governor Fletcher's Queer Trip.

ST. LOUIS, April 8.—Ex-Governor Thomas C. Fletcher, whose mysterious disappearance on March 21 created such a sensation in this city, returned here this morning. He says he started for De Soto to attend to some business matters and so informed his wife. At the depot he met a man named Ackanor, who told him he had come to the city expressly to see him in reference to the La Abraclaim against Mexico. Ackanor got on the cars with Fletcher. He claimed to come from Fletcher's associate counsel in this case and on Ackanor's assurance that some important testimony could be obtained at Matamoras he yielded to his urgent solicitation to accompany him thither. Before doing so, however, he wrote a letter to his wife, apprising her of the change in his plans. Ackanor offered to take the letter forward to the mail car on the train and the ex-Governor gave it to him. At Matamoras Fletcher became convinced that his companion was deceiving him and he started to return home. He was robbed of his money at Rio Grande City and after many vicissitudes he reached home. The letter which he had written to his wife and several telegrams had not been delivered.

What Peter Herdic Would Do.

HUNTINGDON, April 8.—Peter Herdic, of Williamsport, last night made a proposition to the City Council to furnish a supply of good, pure water for this city. He offers to build complete works, taking the water from the river or from springs at or near the Huntingdon dam, and to pump it into a reservoir on Oneida Heights; to put in street mains, the largest to be twelve inches and the smallest six and forty-five plugs, single or double connections, where designated by the public authorities; to give sufficient pressure to throw four streams through one-inch nozzles 100 feet perpendicularly; to furnish free water to all public buildings and school houses, including the Normal College and Orphans' Home, for one fountain and for any number of public drinking or watering places. He asks the city to pay him $1600 a year, the city to have the privilege of buying the works at the end of ten years at a price to be fixed by disinterested persons if he and the city cannot agree. Councils agreed unanimously to submit the question of water or no water to a vote of the people on the 30th instant.

In the Pennsylvania Legislature.

HARRISBURG, April 9.—In the house this afternoon Mr. McGowan offered a resolution for the adjournment of the legislature from the 13th to the 18th of April to enable the members to be at their homes on Arbor day. Objected to. The bill was passed finally appropriating $5,217 for the salary of the secretary of the commissioner in lunacy.

Mr. Brown thought that the house could appropriately honor the anniversary of the surrender at Appomattox by passing an act providing for the establishment of a Soldiers' home, and he requested that action be now taken. The request was acceded to and the bill finally passed. Mr. McGowan moved that out of memory to the victory of twenty years ago and out of respect to the dying hero the house adjourn, which motion was at 4 o'clock carried and the house adjourned.

Almshouse Frauds at Lancaster.

LANCASTER, Pa., April 7.—Warrants were issued to-day for the arrest of John Brock and two daughters, of this city, charged with larceny as bailee and conspiracy to defraud the county. Brock has been steward of the County Almshouse for the past fifteen years, and it is charged that for many years he has been systematically robbing the country in collusion with his daughters, who acted as matrons. Brock retired from office on the 1st of April, and an investigation into his affairs has since been in progress. The accused this evening entered bail for hearings.

Jew and Christian at a Funeral.

BALTIMORE, April 8.—The funeral of Samuel Frank, a prominent Israelite of this city, took place this afternoon, and was conducted by the rabbi of the synagogue where the deceased worshipped. The rabbi was assisted by Rev. R. H. Pullman, pastor of the Universalist Church, and a warm personal friend of Mr. Frank. This is the first instance known in Baltimore in which a Jewish rabbi and a Christian minister officiated in the same obsequies.

Two Taken.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y., April 9.—The Misses Blackman and Schobert and Mr. Dougherty, the three young persons who ran away from their homes in Wilkesbarre, Pa., last evening, to join the Standard opera company, now playing in this city, were to day found by friends who had started in pursuit of them at the hotel Bennett here. Miss Blackman and Mr. Dougherty were persuaded to return home, but Miss Schobert absolutely refused to do so.

Mormons Want to Buy a State.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, April 8.—The Tribune is authority for the assertion that a leading Mormon bishop has declared that the priesthood has concluded it would be cheaper to buy a statehood for Utah than endure the annoyances polygamists are now being subjected to by the enforcement of the laws. Among the laity this is now considered to be the plan of the Mormon campaign.

A Florida Hotel Burned.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 7.—The Leon Hotel at Tallahassee was burned to the ground this morning. The fire was caused by a defective flue in the kitchen, and for lack of extinguishing apparatus the entire building was quickly consumed. The structure was only two years old, and with the furniture cost $30,000. The insurance is not yet known, but is supposed to be small.

The Most Precious of Gifts.

Health is undeniably a more precious gift than riches, honor or power. Who would exchange it for these, the chief objects of human ambition? It is obviously the part of wisdom to employ means for the preservation of health and the prolongation of life which time and experience have proved to be reliable. Many of the dangers by which health is threatened may be nullified by the use of that most irresistible of correctives and tonics, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, by increasing the vital power and rendering the physical functions regular and active, keeps the system in good working order and protects against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments and neuralgia, it is invaluable, and it affords a sure defense against malarial fevers, besides removing every trace of such disease from the system. Half a wine-glassful before meals improves the appetite and insures complete digestion and assimilation.

OF all places in the world Constantinople is about the last in which anything like a demonstration of woman's rights might have been looked for, but the revolt of the wives of government employes proves that as usual, it is the unexpected that generally happens. The astonishment of the guards and police at the determined resistance they met with must have been great but words are wanting to describe the horrified surprise of the Minister of Finance when he found it necessary to make an ignominious exit through the window. This is indeed an age of progress. Even Turkey moves.

Miss Emily Faithful, in the Victoria Magazine, says:

"CROSBY'S VITALIZED PHOSPHITES.—It is with the utmost confidence that we recommend this excellent preparation for the relief of indigestion; nay, we do more than recommend, we really urge our readers to put it to the test, for in several cases personally known to us signal benefits have been derived from it use. We have watched its effects on a young friend who has suffered from indigestion all her life. After taking the Vitalized Phosphite for a fortnight she said to us: 'I feel another person; it is a pleasure to live.' Many hard-working men and women—especially those engaged in brain work—would be saved from the fatal resort to chloral and other destructive stimulants, if they would have recourse to a remedy so simple and so efficacious." Ask your druggist for it

OLD Prince Bismarck has good reason to be proud if anybody has. The demonstrations over his seventieth birthday could not have been more general or enthusiastic had they been over his old master Wilhelm. The people honor the Prince for what he has done for the Fatherland, though love for the rough, arbitrary man is not universal. He has won his place of honor by actual service. The love of the people for the brave and quaint old Emperor is a sentiment, the value upon his Chancellor is estimated upon his work, their respect is wrung from their judgment, and he knows it.

Dr. Mott on Speer's Port Wine.

The celebrated Dr. Mott, of New York, speaks wonders for Mr. Speer's efforts to raise the Oporto or Port Wine Grape in New Jersey. The Doctor has spent years in Portugal and the Wine districts of France, and knows what he is talking about.

62 Madison Ave., New York.

MR. ALFRED SPEER.—Dear Sir: The visit I made to your vineyards, wine presses and vaults at Passaic, N. J., satisfied me that the wines produced by you are pure and the very best that can be offered to the public for medicinal uses.

I have recommended your Port Wine and Burgundy: more particularly in my practice, I am satisfied with marked benefit to my patients.

There can be no better proof as to the Wine being made of the finest Orporto Grape than a visit like I made to your acres of land covered with the vine bearing the fruit.

I remain respectfully yours,
ALEX. B. MOTT, M. D.,
Prof. of Surgery, Bellevue Hospital Medical College, &c.

Cleveland has a very good voice, but it has not a silvery ring.

Clipped from Canada Presbyterian, under signature of C. Blackett Robinson, Propr.: I was cured of oft recurring bilious headaches by Burdock Blood Bitters.

Spring Medicine.

Why does everybody take a spring medicine? For three good reasons, viz.: I—Because one bottle of a blood purifier taken at this season will do more good than two at any other. II—Because the blood is in a more impure condition than at any other season. III—Because the system is so weakened by this impure state of the blood that it has not sufficient vitality to withstand the debilitating effects of spring weather. Hence, by common consent, people seek relief in medicine. The combination of Hood's Sarsaparilla commends it to our judgment as a good spring medicine and blood purifier. Such things as Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Mandrake, &c., compounded by competent druggists like Messrs. Hood & Co., warrant us in suggesting that all in need of a medicine of this kind give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial.

Wolseley to be Rescued.

LONDON, April 6.—Another Nile relief expedition is fitting out at London. It will be commanded by Lady Wolseley, and will consist of herself and a lady's maid. The special object of this expedition is the rescue of General Lord Wolseley. The expedition will meet General Wolseley at Cairo next Monday, the 13th instant, and will start from Cairo the next day to escort the General and his staff to Suakim. No serious attacks by the rebels are expected during the progress of the enovoy.

Don't Spill the Milk.

"There is no use crying over spilled milk," says the old saw. If you are not only bald, but have no life in the roots of your hair, there is no use crying over that either. Take both time and yourself by the forelock while there is a forelock left. Apply Parker's Hair Balsam to your hair before matters get worse. It will arrest the falling off of your hair and restore its original color, gloss and softness. It is a perfect dressing with oil, clean, richly perfumed, cools and heals the scalp.

THE French now believe that Bret Harte is a prophet, and that when he wrote, "For ways that are dark, and for tricks that are vain, the Heathen Chinee is peculiar," he must have been laboring under inspiration. A few days ago the French ships were sailing up the Chinese rivers. Now they are not able to get over the loss of one old Ferry at home.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth! If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. Price 25 cents a bottle. may18 1y

NOTHING makes a fat man learning rolling skating so mad as to have the band come in with a terrific clash on the cymbals every time he sits down real hard.

CURE FOR CROUP.—Use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil according to directions. It is the best remedy for all sudden attacks of colds, pain and inflammation, and injuries.

A correspondent says that people in India are rarely bitten by snakes, as boots are worn to protect the feet. How different it is in this country where people can't keep the snakes out of their boots.

Liver, Kidney or Stomach Troubles.—Symptoms: Impure blood, costive bowels, irregular appetite, sour belching, pains in side, back and heart, yellow urine, burning when urinating, clay-colored stools, bad breath, no desire for work, chills, fevers, irritability, whitish tongue, dry cough, dizzy head, with dull pain in back part, loss of memory, foggy sight. For these troubles "SWAYNE'S PILLS" are a sure cure. Box, (36 pills), by mail, 25 cts., 5 for $1. Address, DR. SWAYNE & SON, Philadelphia, Pa. Sold by Druggists.

Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Consumption—All Throat, Breast, and Lung Affections cured by the old-established "SWAYNE'S WILD-CHERRY." The first dose gives relief, and a cure speedily follows. 25 cts., or $1.00, at Druggists.

London Hair Restorer—Great English Toilet Article. Restores growth, color, gloss, and softness. Removes Dandruff. Aristocratic families of Great Britain endorse it. Elegant dressing. Fragrantly perfumed. The favorite of fashion. At Druggists for 3s 1½d, or 75 cts. in U. S. money.

—Since the great fire some of the merchandise which was damaged by the flames has been offered at what is called a "sacrifice." Now the question occurs, can this merchandise be called a "burnt offering?"

—This is a good season for the Smiths, especially when they are candidates for Mayor. There's Mayor Smith, of Philadelphia, and the successful candidate for Mayor in Cincinnati owns the same fortunate name

—The new Lutheran church at Madisonburg will be dedicated Sunday, April 19. Rev. Dr. Conrad, of Philadelphia, will perform the dedicatory services. A general invitation is extended to all to be present.

—Among the patents granted to Pennsylvanians during the past week was one to James Henderson, Bellefonte, for an apparatus for the combustion of gaseous fuel. Mr. Henderson is one of the greatest inventors in this country.

—Centre Hall is full of young married people all of whom are about to begin housekeeping. This makes houses quite scarce. There are Mr. and Mrs. James Lohr, Mr. and Mrs Chas. Arney, Mr. and Mrs. Witmer Wolf and Mr and Mrs. J. Q. A. Kennedy.

—Mr. Solomon Ettlinger, of Haines township, has disappeared with a large sum on school funds in his possession as collector. There are some $500 in unpaid teachers orders from the board and a total unsettled balance of $1800. So says the Centre Hall Reporter.

—Joseffy, the world's greatest pianist, will visit Williamsport on the 21st, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Wonder if such entertainments would be sufficiently well patronized in Bellefonte under the auspices of the Bellefonte branch of the same organization? Doubtful.

—Miss Mary Packer, daughter of the late Judge Asa Packer and one of the richest women in the United States, was married at her home in Manch Chunk on Tuesday, the 7th, to Charles H. Cummings, of New York, eastern passenger agent of the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

—Mr. Robert Lloyd, one of Philipsburg's enterprising citizens, has laid out several fine building lots just north of that place, which will hereafter be known as North Philipsburg. The lots are beautiful for situation and will be sold to laboring people on extremely easy terms. Every man his own home, is Mr. Lloyd's motto.

—Mary Elizabeth Valentine Jones, the interesting daughter of Mr. William Jones, died Friday morning at 12 minutes of 2 o'clock. She suffered for several days with a severe attack of brain fever until death peacefully ended her earthly life. She was about 12 years of age. We sympathize with the bereaved parents in their affliction. Funeral on Sunday afternoon.

—As a rule, Democratic papers do not pitch into a man with the hope of injuring his character until after he is dead. For illustration, we point to the attempts of the N. Y. Sun to cloud the fair fame which gathers around the name of Garfield. But our not very distant neighbor, the Altoona Times, we regret to notice, is venting its spleen on Gen. Grant at a very inopportune moment and might at least choose a better time for the publication of articles which reflect upon the motives of the General and his family.

Several Accidents.

Mr. J. H. Maize, of Millheim is suffering from the effects of a blow received some time ago while helping to roll a fallen tree. The handspike used by another man slipped and hit Mr. Maize on the breast.

Mr. Daniel Runkle, of Spring Mills, is also a sufferer. He was seated on a sled which upset when going down a steep grade and the force of the fall stunned Mr. Runkle. He is not seriously hurt.

The bad roads have caused several accidents. Mathias Weagley, of Spring Mills, and 'Squire Reinhart, of Woodward, were each thrown from their buggies recently, alighting in holes filled with water and mud, but aside from the fright caused by the danger of drowning, have escaped unhurt.

National Guard.

The following is one of the orders issued from the headquarters National Guard of Pennsylvania by order of Governor Pattison and Adjutant-General Guthrie:

Brigadier-General Geo. R. Snowden, First Brigade, is hereby authorized to hold elections to fill the vacancies caused by the discharge of Major Lander, and Lieutenants Warner and Noble. Brigadier-General James A. Beaver, Second Brigade, to hold elections to fill vacancies caused by the discharge of Captain Carskadden and Lieutenant Marsh, and Brigadier-General J. K. Siegfried, Third Brigade, to hold elections to fill vacancies caused by the discharge of Lieutenants Griffiths and Rhodes.

—Work on the new Catholic church building will be resumed on the first of May. It will be put under roof during the present season.

The Seventeen Year Locusts.

The advent of spring is not a more regular occurrence than is the going out of the farmer armed with pick and shovel who yearly digs down into the surface of the earth and discovers a large number of locusts. The discovery is heralded and the insects are termed the seventeen year fellows The memory of man runneth not back to the time when the seventeen year locust was not billed to appear. Every recurring spring these locusts are supposed to be spaded up and every summer the prognosticator of famines and pestilences shakes his head and predicts that all the crops will be eaten up by the locusts and wheat and other cereals will advance in price. And every year the prophet fails to get any honor in his own country for the locusts never appear to increase any in number. The prediction that they will again come in great numbers is useful, however, to newspaper men. They announce their coming and then their failure to put in an appearance. The same old farmer went out the other day and made the usual spring discovery.—Altoona Tribune.

—A new element has appeared in the contest for the post office. There is now a large delegation at the capital of the country putting in their best efforts in behalf of Mr. Fox's candidacy. This delegation is plentifully supplied with letters couched in the strongest and most convincing language informing the appointing power that unless Mr. Fox is given the post office the hopes and prospects of Democracy in Bellefonte will be forever ruined. They will lose, these letters aver, the support of every man with a drop of Irish blood in his veins if Mr. Fox is not given the privilege of writing p. m. after his name. This large element which constitutes the blood and sinew of Democracy will come wholesale over to the Republicans if Furey, or Dunkle, or Woodring or any of the other candidates are appointed. What to do Democracy knoweth not and all parties are trembling at what may be the result, almost wishing that this was not the great year of jubilee for them.

Changes Wrought by the Fire.

The property at the corner of Bishop and Allegheny streets where VanPelt and Spangler's building was located, was purchased on Wednesday by Bunnell & Aikens, the music dealers. In the near future, one of the finest business structures in Bellefonte will occupy the spot. The main storeroom will, of course, be occupied by Bunnell & Aikens and it will be one of the centres of business and industry. Surely, fire is a purifier, and the transformation from "Strych. nine corner" to a mammoth business emporium will be great and desirable indeed—a consummation most devoutly longed for.

Mr. Thomas Reynolds has abandoned all intentions of building another opera house, but will rear instead two dwelling houses and two store rooms, which will doubtless be creditable and ornamental structures.

—There was a slight fire Friday morning at 1 o'clock at the Glass Works. The frame platform in the flattening room caught fire and for a few moments the flames leaped quite high, threatening the entire works. But, quite fortunately, the men were just going to work and had their buckets filled with water which they applied to the flames. The hose always kept for such emergencies was also brought into requisition and the flames were soon controlled. In one sense, it can be said that both the Logan and Undine hose companies were present, as there are representatives of each company among the employes and many of them are experienced firemen.

What Horatius Did.

"Horatius," said the school-mistress to a nine-year-old boy with imposing freckles on the knees of his trousers. "Horatius, please form a sentence with the word 'toward' in it and write the sentence on the board." Horatius went to the blackboard and after much scratching of the head and friction of brain, painted with the crayon, in letters that looked like a lot of half-feathered Shanghai chickens running after a piece of dough, the following sentence: "I toward my trousers."—Lewiston Journal.

—The joke on the gentle plumber now silently steals away; and the jest on the new Spring bonnet will linger along till May; and through the long, hot summer, like the cause of a fearful dream, will float the ancient chestnut of the girl that likes ice-cream. And the joke of the boy and the apples through the autumn winds will sound; but the joke on the wretched iceman lasteth the whole year round.—Ex.

They Go Fishing.

Several of the renowned Nimrods of this section have plied the line and bait in the muddy waters of the trout streams, but in no instance have we heard of any startling degree of success. The weather has been too cold and the "speckled" beauties, angled for by the great and small, refuse to bite.

On Thursday ex-Sheriff Dunkle essayed his skill. We suppose he provided all the bait he wanted and started toward his favorite haunt, where he oft has gathered them in by the score. Diligently and with true fisherman's patience he whipped the stream, but not a fish rewarded his efforts. In truth, only "fisherman's luck" was his. Let us hope that his postoffice angling will be more successful.

We are told that Judge Orvis went fishing to remain all last week. As he was in Lock Haven on Thursday, he must have strayed out of the way slightly. But if there are any little or big fish in the sea he'll bring them home with him.

The Class in Canning.

The lecture and class in the canning of fruit given at Humes' Hall, April 8, was attended by fifty of the prominent and practical ladies of Bellefonte, who unanimously indorsed methods taught. The methods are simple and practical, using no machinery or acids. These lectures and classes should be attended by all housekeepers, especially for corn, tomatoes and strawberries. Among the ladies who attended we mention: Mrs. W. Laurie, Mrs. E. T. Tuten, Mrs. M. G. Butts, Mrs. Geo. L. Potter, Mrs. J. K. Hastings, Mrs. T. R. Hayes, Miss M. L. Milliken, Mrs. E. M. Blanchard, Mrs. A. O. Furst, Mrs. A. Cook, Mrs. E. S. Dorworth, Mrs. C. M. Bower, Mrs. Mary Stover, Mrs. W. L. Zeller, Mrs. E. A. McCoy, Mrs. H. C. Weaver, Mrs. J. C. Weaver, Mrs. W. I. Fleming, Mrs. J. H. Potter, Mrs. W. A. Lyon, Mrs. M. C. Brockerhoff, Mrs. Amos Mullen, Mrs. Adam Hoy.

—The Literary Society met on Thursday evening with an unusually large attendance. After the devotional exercises were ended the officers elected at the preceding meeting were installed. Following this were the regular literary exercises of the evening which on this occasion consisted of a debate on the subject, "Resolved, That the two sexes should not be educated together." Both sides discussed the subject skillfully. The three dignified judges carefully weighed the arguments and decided in favor of the negative. The general debate was a success. The new president, Mr. C. E. Schaeffer, has decided to rule the society, and will not permit the Society to rule him. We endorse this policy.

The Game of Polo.

Polo was first played on horseback by the English soldiers in India to relieve the monotony of camp life, and on their return to England they introduced it at the Great English camp of Aldershot before the Queen and aristocracy of England. The game become so popular among the English that James Gordon Bennett, of the New York Herald, introduced it to America by the formation of the famous Westchester Polo Club. Every season the club plays match games on its magnificent grounds on Long Island and at Newport, R. I.

—Mr. Robert Sample, of Pine Grove, has been appointed mail agent on the L., C. and S. P. R. R. It is said that he was not an applicant and was rather surprised when appointed, but took the honors and the position gracefully when they came. Oh, but the other individuals who look for fat places do feel surprised, sad and sort of shocked at this unexpected appointment! They say Mr. Sample is a firstrate man for the position.

—The dedication of Gregg Post's new rooms, announced to occur on the 21st, has been indefinitely postponed, partly to give time for more thorough preparation and also because of the serious illness of Gen. Grant, one of the most distinguished members of the Grand Army.

Grant Dying.

I think the April stars never shot
O'er the dumb city a light of such cold spell
As now, at midnight, when all is not well—
When lingering pain is our loved hero's lot!
"Let us have peace," he said, while hate was hot
Still in the land where he stood sentinel
And guardian of its peace, whate'er befell—
He that now sighs for peace yet wins it not!

O thou in whom such calm and power agree,
If immortality may ever dawn
On mortals, of thyself it now were true
That the great spirit of Lincoln looks for thee
Where files of shadowy soldiery are drawn,
Waiting their mighty Captain's last review!

Beautiful Spring.

When the earth from winter's thraldom is released by balmy spring.
And the robin and the bluebird overjoyed their carols sing;
When the trees, so lately gaunt and bare, the starting bud display,
And the fields, erst white, are decked again in verdurous array;
When the promise of the summer breathes in every balmy breeze,
And modest early flowers begin to gem the verdant leas;
When the sun emerges brightly in the morning from his path,
And diffuses golden glory as he climbs his azure path,
Then the ice-man sees a prospect of disposing of his crop,
And people generally expect that coal will take a drop.

The combination, proportion and process used in the preparation of Hood's Sarsaparilla are peculiar to this medicine, and unknown to others.

—The contracts for furnishing ties for the South Pennsylvania railroad were let on Saturday. Rev. F. Benedict, of Bedford, and J. J. Barndollar, of Everett, were the successful bidders in that county. Mr. Benedict is to furnish 100,000 ties at 43 cents each delivered between Mt. Dallas and New Baltimore. Mr. Barndollar is to furnish 60,000 at 40 cents each, delivered between Mt. Dallas and Ray's Hill.

Catarrh or cold in the head is cured by dropping a few drops of Joseph's Oil in the hollow of the hand and rubbing them together and inhaling three or four times a day. Sold by John Harris.

—Mr. Robert McCalmont, of the coal and lime firm of McCalmont & Co., was in his office near the lime kiln on Friday. Suddenly there was an explosion and a reverberating roar from the hillside and a piece of stone came crashing through the window. It was a heavy stone weighing several pounds and contact with it might have proved fatal. It struck Mr. McCalmont on the leg tearing his trousers and inflicting a painful wound.

New Goods!

SECHLER & CO.

Proprietors of the only complete grocery in Centre county, announce to the people of the county that they are now receiving Fresh, New Goods for the Spring Season

—OF—
1885.

Stock Complete!
Nothing Wanting!

SPICES.—The best cook in the land cannot cook successfully without pure, fresh spices. These we have in every variety. Well-seasoned food adds to long life and happiness.

SUGARS AND SYRUPS.—In Sugars and Syrups we have all the best brands in the market. Much of the sugar now sold is adulterated, and in an article of this kind there is great waste. We buy from reliable dealers, and handle only the genuine goods.

TEAS AND COFFEES.—No breakfast can be thoroughly enjoyed without a good cup of coffee or tea. A drink of this kind is stimulating and goes right to the spot. Our Coffees and Teas are fresh and strictly pure. The fragrant odor which escapes from the steaming pot as it comes in from the kitchen will convince you of this. We sell more coffee than any other two houses in the county. Why? Because we sell the best and the people know it.

NUTS, CONFECTIONERY, ETC.—In Nuts and Confectionery we have everything that is nice, and just what will please the young folks, and old folks as well. Our candies are all pure and wholesome; We do not handle the highly-colored, poisonous mixtures that ruin and decay the teeth. We have new Florida oranges (this fall's crop), fine Figs and Prunes, and a choice line of Canned Fruits and Preserves. Bear this in mind when preparing to Celebrate the merry holidays.

We make special mention of the above lines of goods because they are all leading articles at this season of the year. In other lines our stock is equally fresh and complete.

We buy the Best Goods and sell at the Lowest Figures.

Call in and inspect our No. 1 goods. Then you will know where to purchase when your cupboard needs replenishing.

—Some of the storerooms on Allegheny street are being beautified with fresh paint.

—Mr. Augustus Hoover's new houses on Curtin street will be completed in a few weeks.

—Colonel Chill W. Hazzard will deliver the memorial address in Altoona on May 30.

—The Presbytery of Huntingdon met in Tyrone on Tuesday and continued in session on Wednesday.

—Two more snows is what the weather prophets predict. To annihilate these prophets is now the chief duty of man.

—Quite a number of men are at work in the burned district clearing out the debris preparatory to the erection o new buildings.

—Mr. Horace G. Elder cut one of his hands quite severely by bringing it in contact with a circular saw while at work a few days ago.

—Moody and Sankey, the noted revivalists, passed through Altoona on Monday, and we hope improved the spiritual condition of that city.

—Nineteen Winebrennarian converts were immersed on Sunday afternoon in the raging waters of Raystown branch of the Juniata, at Saxton, Pa.

—We are told by agriculturists that there will be no peaches in Centre county this year. The cold weather of last February was too severe for the trees.

—There will be a convention of the Clinton County W. C. T. U. organizations in Lock Haven to-day at which the addresses by Miss Narcissa E. White will be the principal attraction.

—It is wonderful what he can do He thrilled and delighted his vast audience.—Silver Lake Daily. That means Col. Geo. W. Bain, who will lecture in Bellefonte on the 7th of May.

—By an official order, issued from headquarters of the Fifth regiment the date for the quarterly meeting of the officers, which was to have been held in Hollidaysburg, April 22, has been changed to April 24.

—Ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin returned home from Washington on Monday evening. Everybody is glad to welcome our representative in Congress, and none more so on this occasion than those who have post office aspirations.

—At a recent meeting of Victor Grange, No. 159, a vote was taken on the question of the expediency of locating the proposed Experimental Station at State College and the ballot was unanimously in favor of so locating it.

—Posts of the Grand Army in this and neighboring counties that have received invitations to attend the dedication of the new rooms of Gregg Post in this place will please take notice that that event has been indefinitely postponed.

—The Messrs. Goldsmith and sister are changing their residence from Linn street to the pleasant residence vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McCafferty. We understand that Mr. Jonathan Harper, who owns the Linn street house vacated by the Goldsmiths, will move into it.

—"It is a beautiful combination of wit, eloquence and sound advice," is the statement of the Syracuse (N. Y.) Courier of Col. Geo. W. Bain's lecture on "The Pendulum of Life," which will probably be the lecture he will deliver in the Court House in this place Thursday evening, May 7.

—Miss Lizzie B. Waite died at Tyrone last Friday and was buried on Sunday. She was a native of Stormstown, this county, and was a very estimable young lady. She was to have entered as a student at Pennsylvania State College on the 9th, but instead her career was terminated by death. We have no particulars yet.

—An elaborate and beautiful tea service is on exhibition at Mr. F. P. Blair's jewelry store. It is a gift from members of the Bellefonte bar to E. R. Chambers, Esq., whose wedding is announced elsewhere in this paper. The card accompanying the gift has upon it the following names: James A. Beaver, C. T. Alexander, C. M. Bower, J. G. Love, D. H. Hastings, J. L. Spangler, D. S. Keller, J. M. Keichline, J. W. Gephart, S. D. Ray, Henry Keller, W. F. Reeder, C. P. Hewes.

A Golden Wedding.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. John Harpster celebrated their golden wedding at their pleasant home at Port Matilda. The occasion was one of much enjoyment to all who participated. The direct descendants of the happy couple, including children and grandchildren, assembled to the number of about fifty. Mr. and Mrs. John Harpster are very prominent people, and the residents of that section who bear that name, together with the Woodrings and Williamses—families into which the daughters have married—constitute its most important and controlling element. To them is largely due its prosperity and attractiveness. Among the daughters present were Mrs. Jacob Woodring, Mrs. Aaron Woodring, Mrs. George Williams, Mrs. William. A. Williams and Mrs. Weaver. The sons present were Messrs. William and Joseph Harpster. All the above mentioned, except William Harpster, are residents of the immediate vicinity of Port Matilda, William being a citizen of Houtzdale.

Among the invited guests, not relatives, was Rev. Jas. P. Hughes, who spoke eloquently and learnedly concerning the lessons which such an occasion teaches. Particularly, he referred to the fair and unblemished record made by this family. All the children have by their lives honored those who gave them birth and who have reached such an important milestone on earth's pathway. Then he spoke of the changes and discoveries in science and other avenues of improvement which time has wrought since 1812, the date of Mr. Harpster's birth and all of which they have been witnesses. Aaron Williams, Esq., of this place, also spoke effectively.

Other exercises consisted of music (the family including much musical talent), conversation and a sumptuous banquet. As it was Saturday the happy company separated early leaving behind them numerous valuable gifts as lasting mementoes of the felicitous occasion.

We are pleased to note that Mr. and Mrs. Harpster, who have reached quite an advanced age, enjoy excellent health and give promise of living many years longer. It would be as great a blessing as could be invoked for them to wish that the declining years of their lives may be as happy as those already past. We have every reason to believe, however, that the stream of life broadening and deepening in its enjoyment for them, will be even more perfect and unruffled until it reaches the ocean of a boundless eternity of happiness.

—Many of the people of this place look forward to the approaching term of court with considerable interest because of the fact that it is the time for applications for license to be made and there is a certainty that some will be granted, the only question being the number. All good citizens recognize the expediency and necessity of limiting the number of licensed houses, and this has been done of late years in Bellefonte in a way that is quite satisfactory. We believe the tendency of the present court will be to still further limit the number. Even those persons who now apply for license have great difficulty to secure the required twelve good respectable citizens to act as bondsmen and we hear of an instance where one highly respected gentleman is bondsman for four different applicants. This manifests a healthy condition of public sentiment and shows the leavening work of high civilization. With patience and careful and assiduous work public sentiment will in time be all right. We believe that lovers of high morality should act with discretion and patience. The man who sells is no worse than he who signs the bond, neither is he any worse than the attorney who applies for license.

Railroad Elections.

The stockholders of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, which is controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, held their annual meeting in the city of Philadelphia, on Tuesday, April 14, and elected the following officers: President, L. A. Mackey; directors, Edmund Blanchard, A. G. Curtin, J. N. DuBarry, James Duffy, James M. Gamble, John P. Green, John Irwin, Jr., C. A. Mayer, Wistar Morris, G. B. Roberts, Edmund Smith and Henry D. Welsh.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bellefonte, Nittany and Lemont Railroad Company was held the same day, and the following officers were elected: President, J. N. Dubarry; directors, John P. Green, L. A. Mackey, G. B. Roberts, Edmund Smith, N. P. Shortlidge and Henry D. Welsh.

—The subject of Col. Bain's lecture on the 7th of May will be "The Golden Gate, or a Journey Across the Continent."

[Communicated.]

A Tribute of Regard.

There passed from earth in our community, on Sunday morning, the fifth instant, one of the most interesting and beautiful characters that it has ever been our privilege and pleasure to know. Whether we recall her in the freshness of youth, when first we met, or in the long tedious years of her last illness, there stands out in our memory a fullness and perfectness of character that is seldom met with in the walks of daily life.

Her deep affection, her Christian faith and hope, her thoughtfulness of and for all to whom she was allied, early in life developed and marked capabilities destined to fill a field of duty especially set apart as belonging to such a character. Vicissitudes of fortune, pain and physical suffering, changed her not; through all these one met the same cheerful face, the same joyousness of expression, the same confiding hope, until gladness with such a character almost forced or taught us to forget there were needs for sympathy.

But it was in the three years of her last painful illness that the full measure of the Christian side of her character shone forth and triumphed over even death. Patient in long suffering, faithful unto the end, she drew around her closely—and still more closely as each new hope of life fell away—those who knew and loved her best, and to these she manifested all of her love and Christian faith and hope. To her devoted sisters and brothers, to her greatly beloved husband, and to her children, she became an angel, newly robed, alluring to other worlds than this.

Surely it were worth something of life to have know personally Mrs. Annie Lyon, daughter of Abram S. Valentine, deceased, and wife of Stewart S. Lyon, Esq., and to have profited by her life and example beyond the power of tribute to express.

There is a bereaved and desolate home, there are aching hearts made void by this one absent, there's a lute unstrung, but there is one more added to that heavenly choir who praise God forevermore.

FRIENDSHIP'S OFFERING.

Bellefonte, April 13, 1885.

Entertainment at Waddle School House.

On Friday evening, April 3, the people of Buffalo Run were favored with an entertainment at Waddle's school house, which was conducted by E. R. Holmes, as teacher, during last winter. Although the audience, in reaching the place, were thoroughly soaked by the heavy rain, it was quite obvious by their hearty laughter and liberal applause that they enjoyed the entertainment.

The music, with the exception of two vocal selections, was furnished by the Pine Hall Orchestra. The songs were rendered by the two Misses Hughes, of Virginia, who are delightful vocalists. The audience desired them to sing again, but they begged to be excused, pleading weariness caused by the long drive they had that day. One of the songs was entitled "Polly Wang," and as it is exceedingly difficult and was rendered with ease it tested the ladies' skill and training.

All were surprised with the excellence of the Pine Hall Orchestra. The orchestra has practiced only a short time, and when they rendered those lovely waltzes and polkas it was impossible for the audience to keep still. They compare favorably with orchestras from Lock Haven and other large towns.

Other exercises of a purely literary character were essays, declamations, stump-speeches, darkey sermons, dialogues, plays, tableaux, and the reading of the Buffalo "Gnat." Particularly good were declamations, lectures and darkey sermons, and the salutatory was a very solid and instructive oration. The most laughable of all was the play entitled, "Hans von Smath," the principal scene in which was the Dutchman's party which was well performed. The tableaux were considered very fine and especially interested those who were familiar with the circumstances they represented.

This entertainment was first proposed by the Buffalo Run Literary Society, but there was not the proper interest exhibited and it was left to the school to carry through successfully, aided by a few people of the district. By means of careful and intelligent effort a most excellent entertainment was the result.

—W. S. Port, of Port Matilda, Centre county, stopped in town Wednesday on his way home from Clarion county where he attended the golden wedding of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Port, on Thursday, April 2d. Mr. Port's name will be found in the roll of honor this week.—Curwensville Review.

—The weather continues decidedly cool.

Mary Elizabeth Valentine Jones

Died April 10th, 1885, aged 13 years 2 months and days.

"How gentle and how good a child
She was, we know too well,
And dearer to her parents' hearts
Than our weak words can tell."

To those who knew "Lillie" Jones no other qualities of mind and heart were so manifest as her gentleness and goodness. Though naturally retiring and diffident, yet to those who had won her confidence and love she was ever open and free, and seemed to delight in nothing so much as in doing for them acts of kindness and of love.

By her parents, particularly her father, for whom she seemed to have an especial attachment, she will be greatly missed. Whilst others may go and meet him and accompany him from his place of labor to his home, yet the absence of Lillie's face and her words of love will be noted with pain which only a father's heart may feel.

We would bid these sorrowing parents to look for comfort to that unfailing source, and out of their tears they can say:

"God took thee in his mercy,
A lamb untasked, untried." D. M. L.

Chambers-Worth.

We are pleased to announce the marriage of E. R. Chambers, Esq., to Miss Mary P. Worth, on Thursday, the 9th inst.

Mr. Chambers is a well known member of the bar of this county, who by his genial and straightforward deportment has gained the respect and esteem of this community generally. He has pluck, energy and ability and we predict he will be heard from in the future. The bride is the daughter of Mr. Isaac P. Worth, of Kennett Square, Pa., a very highly esteemed gentleman. She is handsome and prepossessing in appearance and is favorably known in this place, having visited here several years since. Mr. Chambers and bride arrived in town on Friday evening and we understand will hereafter reside on Lamb street. We extend our hearty congratulations and trust prosperity will attend them, as we know entire happiness is already theirs.

Truly an Attractive Place.

The following comprise the list of daily papers that can be found upon the tables of the Y. M. C. A.: Philadelphia Press, Williamsport Sun and Banner, Pittsburg Commercial Gazette, Harrisburg Daily Patriot and the New York Tribune. Among the illustrated papers are Puck, Frank Leslie and Harper's Weekly. The rooms are free to all, especially to the young men of our town, and all who desire to read these papers can do so. The Association has one of the finest libraries in Central Pennsylvania, including about 1100 volumes of very choice literature—fiction, travel, biography, history, temperance and religion. Any one of good moral character can have access to these books in the rooms, and by paying only 50 cents per year can take them home for two weeks. Don't let this opportunity pass if you desire to read.

—Mr. Geo. Kaufman, "a practical plumber," has recently engaged in business in Bellefonte and proposes to make our town his home. Mr. Kaufman comes to Bellefonte with the best of references as to his mechanical ability and has already, we understand, had all he can attend to in his line. There is certainly plenty of room here for another first-class plumber and we bespeak for him a share of the public patronage. Orders by telephone either at the foundry of Hicks & Buck or at H. K. Hicks & Bros' Hardware store will meet with prompt attention.

—On Thursday evening, May 7, Col. Bain, of Louisville, Kentucky, will lecture to the people of this place on some popular subject. Although the lecture will be for the benefit of the W. C. T. U. it will not be on the subject of temperance. The immense audience that listened to this renowned lecturer on the occasion of his former appearance in this place will welcome his re-appearance on the lecture platform with peculiar pleasure. His eloquence is magnificent, his method of treating every subject is highly attractive. "In the brief space of one hour" says the Greenville Progress, "he will give four hours of literary feast." Let there be an immense audience. Price of admission very low.

—A clause in the 3d section of article 2 of the constitution of the Y. M. C. A. reads: "Any man of good moral character may become an associate member." On Friday night the final action was taken by the Association to change the word man to person. Said alteration now awaits only the ratification of the court, and when that is done ladies will be admitted to all the privileges of Associate members. For further information inquire of Francis Speer or James Irvin.

David F. Fortney, Esq., departed on Monday for Pittsburg to practice before the United States Court. He promised, if possible, to bring some warm weather home with him.

Mr. James Milliken is at home again after a business trip to New York City. While away from home he visited his friend, ex-Secretary of State Frelinghuysen, who was then very ill.

Rev. John J. Pearce and family of Lewistown, are guests at the home of Mrs. Hutchinson in this place. Rev. Pearce is an ex-member of Congress and a presiding elder of the M. E. church.

President Judge A. O. Furst was in Williamsport the other day. He took refreshment at the Park Hotel and told the Lumber Exchange how to keep the boom from bursting under the pressure of logs.

R. W. Alexander, of Pleasant Gap, spent a few moments in town Tuesday morning. It is refreshing to meet anyone so hearty and cordial in his greeting and so animated in his conversation as R. W.

Rev. Prof. D. M. Wolf, of Spring Mills, was one of the gentlemen we were happy to see Saturday. He only recently returned from Somerset county, where he went to perform the marriage ceremony for a friend, the notice of whose nuptials appears elsewhere.

The Beautiful Snow in April.

And now the man who will be a poet before anyone will know it takes up his pencil and, after looking from the window casement upon the fast falling beautiful snow,

With feelings ecstatic
Writes words emphatic.
Oh, the snow, the beautiful snow
Which falls in April showers;
Bringing a feeling of desolate woe
Upon the lovely flowers.

Then when he meditates upon the lateness of the season and the fact that all the signs of life and loveliness which should adorn the garden and lawn are wanting, he sings to the husbandman who would go forth at dawn to dig an onion bed—

Put away the garden spade,
For it is the shovel brigade
That must work and wait.
It is the heavy bed of snow
And not the onion bed, you know,
That we must cultivate.

Through the Dark Portal.

Two deaths came to our knowledge to-day to chronicle. First is that of the venerable Michael Shuey, of College township. He was 82 years old and was a prominent citizen, whom the community can ill afford to lose. Let those who survive aspire with all ambition to occupy his place of usefulness. The funeral services over his remains occurred on Tuesday.

On Monday evening Matthew Keatley, a resident of Huntingdon county, breathed his last. He was a native of this county and lived here most of his life. His age was about 50 years. His numerous acquaintances in this section will regret to learn of his death.

—Two items of local interest which appeared in Bellefonte correspondence of Saturday's Lock Haven Express were as follows: "George O. Baker, who has been the superintendent at the electric light Station from the beginning, has recently left the employ of the company, his position now being filled by Mr. Green, who formerly had charge of the wiring, and who thoroughly understands the work of an electrician,"—"Judge Dean, of Hollidaysburg, presided over the argument court which was held on Tuesday, as Judge Furst was formerly concerned in some of the cases brought up for trial. The Judge has created a very favorable impression here and will doubtless be needed often until Judge Furst's cases are fully disposed of."

—A specimen fashionable Spring overcoat is described as made of extra wide pattern worsted. The lapels are light and turn five inches. The buttons are placed from two and one half to three inches from the edge and five inches apart for the average height. The breast pocket is finished with a welt, but the side and ticket pockets have light flaps to go in or out. The sleeves are cut to show the seams in front of arm, are of medium width, and put in with but little fullness.

—There was a poor creature in Philadelphia by the name of "Bill Bullitt" whom a lot of Philadelphia roughs, headed by the Philadelphia Press and Times, have jumped upon in their most heartless way and the thing is now lying in a comatose condition at Harrisburg under the care of Dr. Adams, while all the Republicans in the country are concerning themselves as to its final condition.

—Many of the robins and blue birds have become angry at the almanac maker, whose misrepresentation about the advent of Spring attracted them hither and they have gone south again. One big robin who had the tips of his wings and one foot frozen and was threatened with pneumonia says he will not return hereafter until Independence Day.

—Please do not forget that the dedication of Gregg Post's new room has been indefinitely postponed. Why not make it one of the exercises of May 30 and secure the services of some noted orator to deliver a memorial address?

—Two polo clubs have been organized in this place. They are named the Keystone and Active respectively. The Keystone is captained by George Chase and the Active by Ellis Snyder

—Business along the river is reported to be less active than during this time in any previous season.

MARRIED.

EVANS—WELLER.—At the residence of Hon. J. J. Bierer, an uncle of the bride, Latrobe, Pa., Tuesday evening, April 7, by Rev. D. M. Wolf, Rev. J. M. Evans, pastor of Paradise charge, Somerset Co., Pa., and Miss Lelia B. Weller, of Wharton, Ohio.

KNARR—BREON.—On the 31st of March, by Rev. C. W. Raver, Mr. Elmer E. Knarr and Miss Alice M. Breon, both of Millheim, this county.

DIED.

SCHULTZ.—Roy, the only child of Henry and Henrietta Schultz, died April 10, at Curtins, Centre county, Pa., about 5 years of age. The funeral was large.

HOUTZ.—On April 7, at Madisonburg, Edward Houtz, aged 76 years and 1 month. Deceased leaves a widow and six children to mourn their loss, which is his eternal gain. He was a member of the Evangelical Lutheran church for upwards of 36 years.
